NINE WITNESSES ACCUSE DEARTH AS TRIAL BEGINS

Newsboys, Judge, and Grand Juror Testify.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Indianapolis, Ind., March 22.—[Special]—Laughter followed close upon tears today at the opening of the trial of Judge Clarence W. Dearth of Muncie by the Indiana senate. Nine witnesses for the prosecution testified to what were termed high-handed acts by Judge Dearth. The senate, sitting as an impeachment court, previously had voted 41 to 8 to go ahead with the trial regardless of constitutional objections.

These witnesses had largely to do with his action on Feb. 19 last, in stopping the sale of the Muncie Post-Democrat on the streets of this city. The act was admitted by the defense, but back of it they placed the conflicting elements of a father's love and sorrow and the judicial temperament, which admittedly went a trifle awry.

The sale of the paper was stopped, it was argued, because it marked the climax of a situation which few men could have stood without reckless action.

Defense of Home, Honor.

The defense of home and family honor, it was intimated, comes first in any man's heart. What was really behind his act in violation of a free speech and free press was that the Post-Democrat had made insinuations against the character of Judge Dearth's daughter two years before, and had kept on with various kinds of attacks ever since.

The girl, the senate court was told by Attorney Frederick Van Nuys for the defense, had suffered a mental breakdown, had gone away from home, and while Judge Dearth was searching for her, it was intimated in the paper that the disappearance might be explained in terms of the girl's character. Later the girl's body was found in the Ohio river.

Witnesses testified to Judge Dearth's manipulation of juries. The defense to this is that he was acting in the interests of the "good" citizens of Delaware county.

Newsboy Is Witness.

Johnny Rance, clad in knickers and a red sweater, provided the comedy for the trial, when he told how he was brought into Dearth's court with thirty-four or forty other newsboys and his papers taken away from him.

"The judge said there was a piece in the paper that slandered him and the man," said Johnny. "He told me to sell the paper again until he saw what was in it."

Johnny and the others promptly went out and began bootlegging the papers and reaped a rich harvest until they were caught again. A policeman saw Johnny selling and chased him.

"I stopped when he put his hand on my gun," said Johnny. "He said: 'You'd feel funny if I shot your hind end, wouldn't you?' He slapped me and took me to court again."

Newsboy Is Witness.

Johnny said fourteen papers were taken from him and not paid for by the judge. Johnny went out and sold all copies of the proscribed paper the following Saturday.

Witnesses followed with similar tales, and Arthur Jones, chief of police of Muncie, testified that he had instructed his police to arrest the newsboys on orders from Judge Dearth.

Robert F. Murray, Superior Judge of the Delaware-Grant circuit, testified he had talked with him, opposing the selection for the jury commission of men actively in politics. Judge Dearth promised to consult him, he said, and did not do so, but appointed a man who was in politics and another who was objected to by certain lawyers.

Threatened Grand Jury.

Ernest Jester, foreman of a grand jury which served under Dearth last winter, testified that in the matter of the impeachment of Sheriff MacAuley of Muncie, Judge Dearth had said to him:

"If this grand jury doesn't file charges against MacAuley I'll discharge them and get one that will."

He said he told the judge that if the grand jury did not think the sheriff guilty he would have a chance to get another jury.

The case of a man named Holliday came before that jury and it appeared that the Deputy Prosecutor, Wilbur Ryman, in charge of the jury, had been the man's attorney. Mr. Jester presented a petition which he and others had signed asking Dearth to appoint another prosecutor. No other prosecutor was appointed.

Mr. Hazel Carpenter, another member of this jury, testified the day wanted to go into the Holliday case, and asked Ryman if he was attorney for the man, but he denied it. She said Dearth looked it up and told the jury that Ryman was Holliday's attorney, that Dearth seemed keen

PEACHES AND MOTHER, ANGERED AT VERDICT, TO WAR ON BROWNING

New York, March 22.—[Special.]

"Peaches" Browning and her mother threatened today to take steps to have the Children's society take Dorothy Sunshine Brown from her foster father, Edward W. Browning. While they would make no definite statement of their plans before seeing Henry Epstein, their attorney, they hinted at this reprisal against the estate dealer, who won a separation from yesterday.

"I'm ready to go to the Children's society and tell all I know about Browning and Dorothy Sunshine," Peaches said.

Mrs. Heenan was even more forceful.

As for the decision, Peaches said:

"The judge's decision reads all one-sided. You can't consider it fair."

Meanwhile, Browning submitted to one of the briefest interviews in his career. On the question of a possible reconciliation with Peaches and confiscating their papers. Then he said the history of the Dale attacks would be shown—how Dearth had been "bounced and scandalized" by Dale.

"I feel," he said, "that the decision of the court has vindicated and exonerated me."

about the case at the start, but later cooled down.

"We were willing to stay," she said, but Judge Dearth dismissed us. He promised us the next grand jury would take up the case."

At the opening of today's session Senator Carl M. Gray of Petersburg presented a motion to overturn the decision of Judge Dearth and proceed with the trial. The authorities of the act of 1897 was insufficient, he said, to sustain the house in the impeachment if the defendant was found guilty of corruption.

Lieut. Gov. Van Orman, as presiding judge, called for the vote by roll call, and the senators, who had held many conferences during last evening, responded 48 to 1 in favor of the motion.

Rockland, Me., March 22.—[AP]—Benjamin F. Smith, whose pioneer business ventures in the middle west two generations ago brought him the title of "The richest man in New England," bequeathed his entire fortune, reputed to amount to some $50,000,000, to his daughter and five grandchildren.

overriding the demurser. The only dissenting vote was that of Senator James J. Neff of Whiting, president pro tem of the senate, who has held that the impeachment is unconstitutional.

Attorney Moses B. Latry of the defense asked for a list of prosecution witnesses and Senator J. Glenn Harris of the prosecution refused to produce such a list.

"Somebody has already attempted to intimidate some of the witnesses," he said. "We fear if this list is furnished they will get to so many witnesses that we might not be able to witness in the chamber which we now have."

By the time of 4 to 8 the senate court refused to give the names of witnesses to the defense.

Outlines State's Case.

Representative Harris presented the outline of the case for the prosecution. He told first of the seizure of newspapers from newsboys in Muncie, then took up the impeachment of Sheriff MacCauley and Dearth's alleged interference with grand jurors.

Very little evidence would be offered, he said, in the case of George R. Dale, Muncie editor of a weekly paper, now a fugitive, and his case that started the whole trouble.

The morale of the troops goes down when it is to be soft pedaled for reasons that soon were apparent in the opening address of Attorney Frederick Van Nuys for the defense.

As to the seizure of the Dale papers,

Johnny Rance, clad in knickers and a red sweater, provided the comedy for the trial, when he told how he was brought into Dearth's court with thirty-four or forty other newsboys and his papers taken away from him.

CALLS THOMPSON FATAL TO CITY'S 2D WORLD'S FAIR

Dever Says Nations Would Laugh at Bill.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Going into four south side wards last night, Mayor Dever confirmed the rapid fire attack upon the record of his Republican opponent, William Hale Thompson, with which he opened the final two weeks of the campaign the night before.

"The election of this man would bring the name of Chicago into disrepute throughout the world," he said. "Our city would lose the respect and honor not only of other municipalities, but of states and nations everywhere. The day he is elected the Chicago Centennial exposition is dead."

Then he followed this up with serious charges against the two Thompson administrations, using as his basis only what he termed part of the records of "what his cohorts did toward robbing the city of millions."

Catalogs Thompson's Fame.

There are some of the offenses of the Thompson administration that he asserted have been broadcast to the world:

Members of the Thompson school board were indicted in the Criminal court.

Judge O'Connor fined seven of his henchmen $100 each for violation of the civil service law.

In the electrical department one warrant was issued for $140,000 to one concern for one bill of goods for which not one cent's worth of goods was delivered.

Old boilers were sold to an attaché of the school board and were resold to the board for fifty times what had been paid for them and then proved worthless and unusable.

The Thompson administration left the Municipal pier in such condition that it had to be closed to the public and $50,000 spent on it for immediate repairs and later $250,000 more to put it in good condition, a total of $300,000, a large part of which was chargeable to the Pageant of Progress.

Declares Record Is Black.

"This man may stand on this platform and talk until he is black in the face," Mayor Dever said, "but standing behind him is a record of eight years of negligence, waste, and corruption."

"He is not standing upon that record. He is endeavoring to cover it up with buffoonery and false issues. He is the land. If Col. Smith were seated in

POLITICAL NOTES

A Dever demonstration will be held on Wacker drive between State street and Wabash avenue at 1 o'clock today. The Polish National alliance and the Polish Women's alliance will have large delegations present and other organizations will be represented. Miss Emily Napieralski, a Republican, will take a prominent part.

William E. Dever hour will be broadcast from 10 to 11 every night except Monday until election day from station WTAS. The arrangements were made by the Independent Republican Dever committee with the station owner, Charles Erbstein.

A delegation from the Swedish-American Voter club, including Ald. George O. Anderson, A. O. Eberhardt, former governor of Minnesota, the Rev. Joshua Odén, and G. Bernard Anderson, Swedish vice consul, will call on Mayor Dever today.

A statement from Thompson headquarters charged the Dever administration with giving to political friends, contracts for "rotten concrete lamp-posts," costing $23.48 apiece as substitutes for $14.85 castiron posts.

John W. Chapman, a Democratic candidate against Ald. Christ Jensen [46], was endorsed last night by the Fortieth Ward Citizens' association.

Attorneys for Ald. Charles S. Eaton [51] and Ald. Robert E. Barbee [17], last night were completing petitions for writs of mandamus to compel the election board to allow them to go on the ballots April 5. The two hold that counting "spoiled" ballots, their opponents failed to receive majorities Feb. 22. The petitions probably will be presented to Superior Judge Tornison today.

It is appealing to everything that is worse in human nature. I am appealing to the intellect of Chicago. I am not appealing to race prejudice or religious prejudices at all."

Mayor Dever again attacked Mr. Thompson's profession of witness. This time he recited that when a candidate for the United States senate Mr. Thompson issued a pamphlet for downstate circulation boasting he was the man who had closed the Chicago saloons on Sunday, that for a time he supported the late Senator McKinley and then transferred his support to Frank L. Smith, both drys.

Smith Boosts for Thompson.

"And Col. Smith got up in a Chicago theater today," he continued, "and said he never would forget the splendid support given him by William Hale Thompson."

Mr. Hale Thompson's whole history shows that he never has supported any other than dry candidates. He has used whatever influence he has to fasten this law on the worthless and unuseful.

He is standing upon that record.

He is endeavoring to cover it up with buffoonery and false issues. He is the land. If Col. Smith were seated in the senate today, he would be voting in favor of every piece of dry legislation presented."

The mayor's meetings were at the Banner Club temple, 6710 South May street; the Blue Room, 14th street and Calumet avenue; the Kappa clubhouse, 47th street and Lake Park avenue, and at 54th street and Kimball avenue. At the first two places there were overflow meetings.

Eight Disgraceful Years.

"The eight years of my administration," he said, "will go down in history as the most disgraceful in the history of Chicago. That administration was negligent, wasteful and corrupt to the last degree. It was bad all through."

"When we took charge four years ago there wasn't a department in the city hall that hadn't gone to rack and ruin. We took possession of a municipal housekeeping structure that was unfit, dismantled, in almost complete collapse and the morale of all the great departments had gone to smash. The city employees were the most miserable and unhappy group of their kind in the country."

"So tremendous was the damage done that when it seemed apparent that no good Republican could nominate for mayor, a man who was fit of that honor this year, they came to me and pleaded that I was the only man who could block a return of the former evils and that is the only reason I am a candidate now."

The People's Dever for Mayor committee issued a statement charging that the department of public welfare was wrecked under Mayor Thompson and that it now is functioning in a way to arouse the city's pride.

The independent Republicans' Dever committee announced the addition to its roster of the following names: Max Adler, L. K. Baker, William A. Bond, George E. Booth, A. V. Crary, Joseph C. Detre, J. J. Flynn, Paul E. Gardner, W. C. Gillett, Arthur Goodwillie, Charles R. Holden, A. W. Jeffries, John F. Jelka Jr., A. G. Lester, Miss Mary E. McDowell, Luther C. Rogers, Edgar J. Uihlein, and Paul Walker.

U. S. MARINES' AUTO FIRED ON BY NICARAGUANS

[Chicago Tribune Free Service]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 21.—While a truck filled with United States marines was leaving the station this morning for camp they were fired on from nearby houses. The bullets smashed the windshield and hood of the auto, but no one was injured. Capt. Louis E. Fegan, commanding the 194 marines, is searching for arms in this Indian village of 4,000.

The main forces of both the Nicaraguan armies clashed this morning near Tierra Asul. The government forces retired toward the hills to await reinforcements from Muy Muy.

It is estimated that there were 1,300 rebels and 1,000 government forces in the action, in which it is reported there were 100 casualties.

INCOME TAX MAY GO 400 MILLION OVER LAST YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Free Service]

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—Income tax collections for the first eight months of the present fiscal year showed an increase of $219,059,228 over the corresponding period of the previous year, according to the internal revenue bureau.

Miscellaneous tax collections during the same period amounted to $18,029,817 as a result of appeals and reductions in income taxes in the 1926 act.

The net increase in tax collections for the eight months' period was $219,059,228.

These figures do not include the March income tax payments, which are expected to add an additional increase of $100,000,000. With the June payments promising a further increase it is regarded as certain that the income tax receipts for the entire year will show an increase of $400,000,000 over the previous fiscal year.

This huge increase is in prospect despite a reduction in rates on individual incomes. Less than one-fourth of the total will be accounted for by the increased tax on corporation earnings. The total, however, will be almost entirely offset by the decline in miscellaneous tax collections.

Collections of internal revenue from July 1, 1926, to Feb. 28, 1927, amounted to $1,561,897,858, compared with $1,540,677,255 from July 1, 1925, to Feb. 28, 1926.

sentiment on the south side at present strongly favors William Hale Thompson for mayor, if THE TRIBUNE is a reliable index. Measured in actual votes the Thompson advantage there means upwards of 50,000.

That estimate will undoubtedly be questioned by the Democrats. They and the newspapers for years have said much about "the great west side" that they have come to believe it is the most populous section. The fact is that the south side is 1924 polled about 6,000 more votes for president, 13,000 more votes for governor and 17,000 more votes for United States senator than did the west side. It is therefore apparent that the south side can be as large a factor in deciding the mayoral election as the west side.

There are probably 200,000 votes available on the south side for this contest and the new polls indicate that Thompson has an advantage of nearly 15 per cent.

Strong for Thompson.

The straws presented today are from 21 south side movie theaters, four west intersections in white neighborhoods, five street corners in colored sections, all on the south side; and several miscellaneous locations. The total votes collected are 8,029, of which more than 80 per cent were gathered in on the south side.

The 6,524 straws from the south side were supplied by the voters among the candidates as follows:

Straws	Percent
Dever [Dem.]	2,676 40.9%
Thompson [Rep.]	3,641 55.8%
Edwards [Ind.]	213 3.2%
Total	6,524 99.9%

A perusal of the details below, of which the above is a summarization, makes it evident even to those unformed on politics that the following is the present situation on the south side:

The colored voters prefer Big Bill. The high class Republican voters want Mayor Dever re-elected.

Part of the Democratic territory favors the present mayor and the other part leans strongly to the former mayor.

Better for Democrats.

From the Democratic viewpoint the south side is in much better shape than the west side, where the poll on the east and State street on the west. That is largely Republican territory. While the mayor now appears to have an edge in it, it is relatively small. The detail below will disclose several Democratic districts where the mayor is running ahead, but even in these he does not appear to have the now Democratic strength. In several other Democratic spots the present mayor lags behind the former mayor.

The details of the poll are as folly to the emotions. That audience went for Thompson two to one. The reputation of Big Bill as a sportsman apparently appealed to the persons who attended the soccer game at De Paul college campus, and he was given the edge over the mayor. The country hospital people intended to give Dever a substantial margin. On that basis it would have been much more for Thompson than the figures show, many and hospital attachés cast a straw, and they went for Dever. But at that Thompson got a third more votes.

The three dance halls polled are located on each of the three sides of the city. The west side hall went strong for Thompson and the north side hall gave Dever a substantial margin. He also had a slight edge in the south side dance hall.

The details of the poll are as follows:

CHANCES FAVOR DEVER ALDERMEN ON WEST SIDE

Cepak, Mendell and Mills

Likely to Win.

Voters on the west side probably will send three sitting aldermen, all Dever Democrats, back to the city council at the mayoralty election April 5, judging from the reports of campaigns underway in that part of the city.

The three incumbents, Ald. Joseph Cepak [22], Ald. Joseph Mendell [26] and Ald. Wiley W. Mills [37], however, are all facing stiff opposition, and, despite their present prospects of victory, might topple if there should be a heavy vote for Thompson.

Ruskin in Eleven Wards.

Runoff elections are slated in a total of eleven wards in which candidates received a majority in the preliminary election.

The hottest of the west side fights, apparently, is that of Ald. Mendell who is pitted against Frank A. Sloan, a Thompson candidate, although he is a nephew of the late John J. Sloan, president of the board of local improvements under Mayor Dever.

In the first election, Ald. Mendell polled 4,088 votes to 2,656 for Sloan.

Anthony L. Goluzinski, 38 years old and a native of Poland, is the Thompson hope to beat Ald. Cepak. Ruskin in the 22d ward, while Ald. Cepak is the protégé of Anton J. Cernak, president of the county board. On Feb. 22 Cepak received 4,709 votes, falling only 221 of obtaining a majority. Goluzinski received 2,190.

In the 37th ward, the Austin district, Ald. Mills is racing for the second time against Bert Fairchild, another Democrat, but said to have Thompson's support. In 1925 Ald. Mills downed him in the runoff and topped him by 4,358 on Feb. 22, and should repeat the act on April 5, barring an upset. Mills is a dry and a reformer. Fairchild is a baseball promoter, living at 5308 West Chicago avenue.

Still Albert vs. Haas Fight.

Still for the bitterest fight in the city is that in the 43d ward, where Ald. A. F. Albert, and Titus A. Haas are engaged in a lurid combat of personal and political invective. Despite this scrap has grown hotter and promises to be second in interest only to the mayoralty struggle on election day.

At a meeting of 300 workers last night Ald. Albert charged that Haas has collected a slush fund of $50,000 most of it coming from saloons and dive keepers.

Talk of M.L. Igoe to Succeed Busch in Dever Cabinet

Rumors are current in the city hall that Michael L. Igoe, member of the south park board and Democratic minority leader in the state house of representatives, will succeed Francis X. Busch as corporation counsel, should Mayor Dever be re-elected.

Angus Ross, 24 years old, 412 South Sangamon street, who was shot early yesterday morning by two policemen who surprised him and a companion as they were robbing employees of a restaurant at 2103 West Madison street, died at the county hospital last night.

Ross, according to the police, was an ex-convict. The other man, Joseph Pogvare, 22 years old, 2342 West 28th street, was shot twice in the right side and his condition at the hospital early today was said to be critical.

Policemen Ambrose Mahoney and Edwin Martin, who came to the restaurant to find the employees gathered with raised hands, the robbers pointed with revolvers at them as former soldiers. Both received citations for bravery during the world war. Pogvare fired several times at them, but missed.

THOMPSON CALLS DEVER, BRENNAN "NO DEMOCRATS"

Hails Mayor Three Times
as "Damn Liar."

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The mayoralty campaign hopped on the merry-go-round yesterday and some of the horses chased each other dizzy around a circle.

William Hale Thompson by way of reply to the charges of Deverites that the Thomponsites have rung in the false issue of the Negro question declared that Mayor Dever and George Brennan are in a "diabolical plot" to ring in the false issue of the Negro question.

Before packed houses, Thompson pulled a cartoon out of his pocket and held it up to the view of his audience.

"See this," he said. "Dever and Brennan are circulating this vile cartoon—William Hale Thompson kissing a Negro. Dever and Brennan are scum of the earth."

"If we're nasty and truck like they suppose I might have one of my boys draw a cartoon of Dever kissing a Chinaman."

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, in rejoinder to the charges of Raymond Robins that Thompson was spreading religion in his religion, said Robins dragged the religious issue in by his method of insisting that it be kept out. It was a day of alibis, and the innocent bystander was left bewildered as to who had started the stuff anyway.

Thompson, descending upon the town of Lake Woods last night, reiterated much of his utterances at a midday rally at the Erlanger theater which ran along into midafternoon.

Charge Diabolical Plot.

"Mayor Dever," Bill said, "is a party to a most diabolical plot to raise a racial question. Brennan and Dever are sending messages to southern cities asking friends down there to send dispatches to Chicago saying Thompson has engorged 150,000 Negroes to come to Chicago after he is elected. It shows the desperation to which they are reduced, for on the face of it it's a silly lie."

"Let me say that if this mythical 150,000 is going to be any good to me, they'd better come here before election. Dever and his police after the primaries over night drew 1,000 innocent Negroes into jail, who were let out as far as they could come into court. The Cossacks were trying to bring about a reign of terror."

"If they do to Negroes now, how soon before they'd do it to Jews, to Poles, to Germans? If we are going to have a tyrant for mayor, they're starting the right way."

"And now they are looking for a lot of telegrams from the south. Say, I'll have trouble enough giving my friends jobs after April 5 without bringing Negroes in to fill jobs. It shows their tendencies for falsehood."

Sent Speech For Thompson.

Senator-elect Fred L. Smith sat in a box at the Erlanger saluting. He is improving in health, but still looks an invalid. He had come up from Dwight Thompson pointed him out, and the crowd yelled for a speech.

"I wish I lived in Chicago," Mr. Smith said. "I'd like the honor of voting for Mr. Thompson. I owe him a debt of gratitude I never can repay, and I hope he sweeps the deck clean April 5."

"Do you know why they are fighting Frank L. Smith in Washington?"

Dever a liar and a "damn liar" three times.

"Mayor Dever says there's no crime," he said. "He said this one day. The next day a couple of gunmen held up the Palmer house and took six grand; then they held up a jewelry store; then a day or so later they stuck up a place in the Ashland building on pay-off night in a gambling joint and took $5 grand from gamblers who Dever says don't exist. The other night they held up a shoe store in the Sherman, 75 feet away from Dever headquarters. Working closer to Dever headquarters. Working closer to the city hall all the time."

Crowe Turns on Robins.

State's Attorney Crowe, who is the author of the punchiest stuff at Thompson headquarters, too, as his theme is the pugnacious Robins. Mike Robins was the spokesman of religious issues being brought into politics, and had called Mayor Dever an honest American Catholic as he (Robins) was an honest American Protestant.

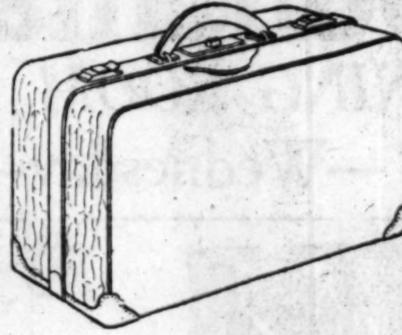

"Robins," Mr. Crowe said, "reminds me of the poker player sitting in a game in which a one-eyed man was also playing. He remarked that he did not want to mention any names, but if the man who was cheating didn't stop he would knock his other eye out."

"Two years ago George Brennan financed, through the Rev. Elmer Williams and the Better Government association, the candidacy of Hope Thompson in the hope of taking enough Republican votes away from me to elect Mike Igou. George Brennan said he contributed $27,000 to the Better Government association at that time to raise the religious issue in the Republican party against me."

Homer K. Galpin slung the following off his fountain pen, directed at the independent Dever committee headed by such civic leaders as Ju-

HOLD UP PAYING MAY PENSIONS FOR 2 MONTHS

Washington, D. C., March 22.—(UPI)—

May and June pension payments may have to wait until July, the first month of the government's new fiscal year, as the result of the inability so far of the administration to work out a plan for the payments for which Congress failed to appropriate funds.

While President Coolidge is hopeful that some way may yet be devised to obviate the two months' waiting, definite assurance was given today that the payments could be made in July.

It was recalled that until recently pension payments were made on a three months' basis.

CAR MAN SAYS MOST OF LABOR UPHOLDS DEVER

Unionists Form League to Boost Mayor.

Dever sentiment in the Chicago trade union movement has been steadily increasing. Today 85 per cent of the rank and file and officials are supporting him, according to Joseph Kehoe, recording secretary of the Street Car Men's union, the largest and richest union in Chicago.

Mr. Kehoe made this announcement late yesterday at a meeting of the Dever Trade Union Labor League in the Hotel Sherman. Earlier in the day the league held an organization conference and elected Edward (Pop) Ryan, former president of the Building Trades council, chairman Ryan is business representative of the Architectural Iron Workers' union. Bernard L. Cruise, plumbers, was selected vice chairman; Martin Durkin, steamfitters, treasurer; and Thomas Dowling, plasters, secretary.

Charge Bill's Claim Is False.

Protest was voiced at the meeting against the action of Thompson headquarters in handing out names of league executives as Big Bill supporters. At yesterday's meeting representatives of about twenty-five of the thirty-two building trades in the city attended and pledged support to Dever.

Mrs. Mary McEnery, secretary of the Binders' and Glaziers' union, is chairwoman of the women's division of the Dever for mayor trade union committee. Today the Dever labor supporters will begin a campaign to enlist each trade unionist in a movement to back the mayor's candidacy. The organization campaign will be started by officers of the Chicago Journeyman Plumbers' union, who will also solicit the aid of all master plumbers. Tonight at Temple hall the journeymen plasterers will hold a meeting and Mayor Dever's platform explained by union officials. Similar action will be taken by the Steamfitters' union on Thursday night at union headquarters at Van Buren and Hoyne streets.

Carmen Plan Dever Meeting.

Saturday night the conductors and motormen both on the elevated and surface lines will hold a Dever for mayor massmeeting at Ashland auditorium. The meeting will be held in conjunction with the Dever Trades Union Labor league. Speakers will include Mayor Dever, Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, and William Hale Thompson and Joseph Kehoe, the president and secretary of the Street Car Men's union.

Ad. Thomas Bowler, who is a custodian of the street railway employees property, last night said labor support of William Hale Thompson has been greatly exaggerated, adding that most meetings called by that group had to be called off because of small attendance.

"Reports along that line have been circulated in an effort to stampede wage earners into voting for Big Bill Thompson, a man who is on record as favoring starvation wages for the women and men of toil," Kehoe asserted.

Says Thompson Cut Pay.

"He was instrumental in cutting the wages of street car men and he was responsible for the strike of traction employees in 1922. How can a man of Big Bill's type, who never had to toil for a livelihood, only browse about, compute the wage rate for wage earners? And still he wants to pose as a friend of the worker."

Kehoe and other labor leaders will take the stump in various wards in Mayor Dever's behalf before the close of the mayoralty campaign.

PUBLICITY GLARE WILTS THREAT OF WAR IN BALKANS

Whitewash for Italy and Serbia to End Row.

BY JOHN STEELE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, March 22.—The British diplomats now are satisfied that the Albanian crisis is over, though there still is publicity given before matters get to the fighting stage. Probably there will be an international committee of inspection of some sort appointed to investigate what is happening on the frontier and to whitewash both Italy and Jugo-Slavia.

It will not be a league of nations committee, as it is feared, that this might be too formal and contain some honest neutrals who would insist on a tribunal's power and refuse to go through with the whitewash, which now is regarded as the best way out of the situation. It is probable that the commission will be composed of military men appointed by two or three great powers, who will visit the frontier and find nothing there, which, of course, will be the case when they arrive.

In diplomatic circles generally the outcome is regarded as a diplomatic triumph for Italy, which has foisted by publicity the alleged Jugo-Slavia attempt to upset Italian control in Albania.

Seek Stronger Jugo-Slav Cabinet.

BY JOHN STEELE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, March 22.—While it still is not known whether the Jugo-Slavian government intends to take official action regarding the Italian accusations of Belgrade's alleged military preparations for the invasion of Albania, the speeches today in parliament by the members of every party are regarded as practically assuring the entry of a coalition government as soon as the present budget is voted. The duty of the new government will be to initiate a foreign policy to protect "the Balkans for the Balkans."

M. Markovitch, the democratic leader, outlined what is regarded as the foreign policy of the proposed coalition government, of which he is expected to be foreign minister, as "the closest co-operation with England, which has always stood for the Balkans, and good relations with Bulgaria, Hungary, Germany and similar nations."

M. Prebitovitch, chief of the independent democrats, called Italy the "wolf trying to eat the lamb"—meaning Jugo-Slavia.

TRIAL OF DE VALERA PACKS COURTROOM; TELLS IRELAND WOES

New York, March 22.—[Special]—Eamon de Valera, president of the self-styled Irish republic during its brief existence, testified today in the suit brought by the Irish Free State against Samuel Insull, concerning and judgment on the title to $2,500,000 on deposit here as the remainder as of $6,000,000 subscribed in this country to a bond issue of the Irish republic.

RAMON DE VALERA. His appearance packed the courtroom with spectators, most of whom were women. As he entered the courtroom a demonstration started by the women was quickly silenced by court. De Valera paid no attention to the applause.

His testimony was an outline of Irish history from the time of the Easter uprising in 1916 in connection with which, he said, he had been court-martialed and sentenced to death.

SCHWARTZ SAYS THOMPSON MADE INSULL MILLIONS

Cites Favors to "L" and North Shore Line.

"Thompson accuses Dever of being controlled by the street car magnates. A smoke screen—I call it—a smoke screen to cover up his own rank favoritism, for eight years to Samuel Insull, the biggest of all the traction barons."

This was said yesterday by former Alderman U. S. Schwartz [44th], chairman of the council transportation committee under the Thompson administration. He talked because of recent statements by the women was quickly silenced by court. De Valera paid no attention to the applause.

His testimony was an outline of Irish history from the time of the Easter uprising in 1916 in connection with which, he said, he had been court-martialed and sentenced to death.

"Why did Insull put a 10 cent fare on the 'L' lines in 1920 without a murmur from the city while Thompson was spending a barrel of money to cut the surface lines' fare to 5 cents?" Mr. Schwartz asked, in a statement issued voluntarily.

"Why did Thompson O. K. the Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee lines?"

"The elevated railroad litigation and running on 'L' tracks without a city franchise?"

Indicates Early Union.

"Mr. Insull made millions on both deals. Would it be any wonder if he slipped a check or two into Thompson's campaign fund in payment for past favors?"

The chain of evidence connecting Messrs. Insull and Thompson, Mr. Schwartz declared, began to link up in November, 1921, when Thompson initiated his ill-fated 5 cent street car plan. A part of the plan, Mr. Schwartz recalled, provided for the purchase of the "L" lines for approximately $5,000,000.

"Mr. Insull was for the plan in the legislature," he said. "Why? Because he could unload his elevated lines for an excessive cash figure. Had the plan gone over he would have profited immensely."

States Raises "L" Fare.

It was Aug. 4, 1920, according to the Schwartz record, that the "L" fare went up to 10 cents by order of the Illinois corporation commission. On July 5, 1921, it was made three rides for 25 cents and $1.25 per weekly pass, where it now remains.

"Where was Thompson's corporation counsel when Mr. Insull was putting over his 10 cent fare?" Mr. Schwartz's statement asked. "Was he trying to prevent it? No, he was too busy attacking the 8 cent fare of the surface lines."

The former councilman cited the report of Thompson's legal department in the booklet, issued in 1922, entitled "Eight Years of Progress." After a 500 word eulogy of the battle against the Surface Lines, the report added:

"The elevated railroad litigation and the telephone litigation also has resulted in rates being kept down and will undoubtedly terminate to the advantage of the city."

Big Help to North Shore Line.

During 1924, according to the North Shore's financial report, its passenger business in and out of Chicago on the "L" tracks was $2,612,391, or $5.3 per cent of the total passenger business of that company. In the first half of 1925 the business totaled $1,390,962, or 54.3 per cent of that company's total passenger business.

The total freight business on the "L" tracks in 1924 was $778,241.99, or 74.8 per cent of that company's total freight business.

The whole north shore deal, which Thompson approved, has been exposed by the Dever administration.

Mr. Schwartz said, "It is now pending in the courts with a good chance of a victory for the city, unless it is squelched by Thompson should he again be put in office."

Dever Takes Case to Court.

"Thompson's corporation's officer obviously had orders to put the soft pedal on the North Shore case.

The record shows it was fully aware of what was going on and approved it.

It was not until Dever came into office that the city took the case to court."

The Schwartz statement quoted a letter signed by Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Etelson, Feb. 15, 1925, in which he stated that the North Shore operated on the "L" tracks by virtue of a direct contractual relationship between the said elevated railroad com-

mpanies and itself," and that the city ordinances legalized the deal by providing for operation of cars "other than those belonging to said companies."

Examining the ordinances later,

Dever corporation counsels were unable to find the latter quotation and declared that it never existed.

Ready to Tell Still More.

Mr. Schwartz added, in his statement, that he stood ready to furnish still more evidence, if necessary, to expose the fact that Thompson was an

Insull tool throughout his administration and that, as a result, the people are paying millions of dollars in In-sull's treasury, which Dever accused of being "controlled by the street car magnates," is endeavoring to save.

It is true, of course, that many who buy the Cadillac never think of asking for a demonstration. They have been buying Cadillac's year after year—some of them as many as 25 years—and they give thought to no other car.

The fact remains, however, that nine out of ten Cadillacs sold are sold after a demonstration—after the prospect has actually taken the wheel and thrilled to the car's silent, smooth speed, flashing acceleration and facile power.

This means, simply and solely, that the new Cadillac pleased them and satisfied them as no other car could. Indeed, many new buyers tell us that this great new Cadillac, by reason of what it is and what it does, simply antiquates all their previous fine car standards.

Whatever we might say to you here could not be half so convincing as your own experience in riding and driving one of the great new line of Cadillac cars—A demonstration can easily be arranged.

Lord Robert Cecil at Geneva has submitted the British draft of a convention for reducing armaments to the preparatory disarmament commission of the league of nations. The United States is sitting in. It is sitting in four league committees, apparently having been put up for nonresident membership and having been booked for a room.

It is understood that Hugh Gibson, chief of the American delegation, had a preview of Lord Robert's draft and said he did not care for the stipulation that the powers would join in such action as would be considered effective if it should be discovered that any nation was exceeding its allocation of arms.

Mr. Gibson thought the United States was not prepared to go along with Great Britain in that direction. He may have recognized Article X of the league of nations' covenant or something like it. Lord Robert probably made a note of the objection.

M. Paul-Boncour, for France, had proposed the establishment of a control commission which would investigate and satisfy itself that the nations were not secretly exceeding the armament to which the agreement, when made, had reduced them. Mr. Gibson, for America, had objected to this and Lord Robert did not include it in the British draft.

What he proposes is that the nations shall agree to a limitation of army, navy, and air armament and that the limit shall not be increased except in case of war, rebellion or with the consent of the league council. It is provided that nations shall advise the council of the amounts appropriated for armament; that troops shall be limited to specific figures to be determined later in the conference in each case, that the commissioned officers shall not exceed one for each fifteen enlisted men and non-commissioned officers shall not exceed one for each nine enlisted men.

The naval proposals contain a limitation of the size of torpedoes, the British still retaining their dislike of enemy submarines. No limit of navy airplane carriers is suggested. In speaking of the proposals Lord Robert noted that the French asked for a speeding up of the operations by which the league could give aid in case a nation were attacked and need protection from aggression.

It is necessary at this point to recall that Mr. Harding and not Mr. Cox was elected in 1920 when Mr. Cox was for the league and that Mr. Coolidge and not Mr. Davis was elected in 1924 when Mr. Davis was for the league. It is also necessary to consider that the American delegates, although advising as to the propositions, objecting to some and agreeing to others, are not supposed to be plenipotentiaries. As it is understood Mr. Gibson will not send a treaty negotiated and signed by him and his associates back to be ratified by the senate in Washington.

It is presumed that the American delegates are merely being unofficially chatty with the league commissioners in devising a machinery by which the league may control arms and munitions and form an international police to handle any nation which threatens a breach of peace. It is necessary to bear heavily on this understanding and these assumptions. Otherwise the United States seems to have still in the chair reserved for it in the league. It may be that America is being treated as a shy horse which does not want to enter a box car and yields when blindfolded and backed in.

The fascination of world politics is apparently one of the most alluring things in Washington life. A world conclave draws Uncle Sam as a circus draws a small boy. He can't keep away from one, even if he knows he'll be used to carry water for the elephants. Mr. Coolidge proposed a second navy conference, but to get ready for it the United States has delegates at the league capital discussing control and coercion, the use of international armies and navies, the power of the league council to release a nation from the limitation, the submission of national budgets to council inspection, etc.

It is the machinery of league control and the United States is sitting in almost as big as life and twice as happy. If Europe reflects that a little more patience will land this fish yet, who would call Europe crazy?

HANDS ACROSS THE BORDER.

A bill has been introduced in the dominion parliament in Canada to incorporate the North American relations foundation. The foundation is intended to "promote, maintain and safeguard amity and friendly relations between the people of Canada, the United States and the British commonwealth of nations generally" and to foster "co-operation in all matters affecting the moral, social and economical disposition of the people of these countries." The list of incorporators includes some of the most important figures in Canadian life. The idea is a good one, particularly as the program of the foundation indicates that it will work toward breaking down the tariff barrier between the United States and Canada. The attention of our internationalists who are wasting their thought upon Europe, which does not want their advice, would better be directed to establishing the North American relations foundation on this side of the border. Maintaining good relations with Canada is as much a tradition of American foreign policy as is keeping out of European entanglements.

FAME BUT NO MONEY.

The London Lancet, a medical journal with a venerable past, has expressed alarm at the intention of Drs. George and Gladys Dick of Chicago to patent in Great Britain their processes for the prevention, detection, and cure of scarlet fever. The processes, it appears, have been patented already in this country. The Lancet was afraid the Dicks would exploit their work for their own financial gain.

To this criticism replies have been made by the doctors themselves and by the McCormick Institute for Infectious Diseases, where they have done their work. The doctors explain that the patents have been sought only from a desire to retain control of the manufacture of the toxins and anti-toxins. The Dicks never attempted to keep their treatment a secret. As soon as they published their results manufacturers set about making the preparations, but because of faulty technique some of the commercial product was worthless, or nearly so. The Dicks had to face the fact that their work was being discredited and lives were being sacrificed because the product of some commercial laboratories was poor. Accordingly, the doctors have sought patents which will enable them to limit manufacture to those companies which have the requisite equipment, technicians, and integrity. The McCormick Institute has issued a statement saying that title in the patents is vested in a committee which will devote the profits, if any, to further research and to free treatment for those who cannot afford to pay for it.

These explanations must satisfy the most conservative upholder of traditional medical ethics. They throw the case made by the Lancet out of court. The Dicks are not going to become rich from their discovery. They are not going to make the cost of a cure prohibitive to the poor. The question remains, however, whether the traditional attitude of the medical profession toward rewarding medical discoveries, as implied in the Lancet's editorial, is sound.

The Lancet says that every medical discovery is built upon the discoveries of other men. The Dicks owe much to Pasteur, Koch, and a host of others. That may be granted, but it is not decisive. Every scientific advance is built upon other men's work; in fact, every creation is heavily indebted to the past. Henry Ford is the richest man in the world. He made his fortune by building automobiles, but he did not invent the internal combustion engine, the magnetos, the storage battery, springs, or wheels. Every writer, every lawyer, every business man is indebted to predecessors in his field. Why should the world of medical research be the only one which denies the discoverer a monetary reward for his gift to mankind?

The layman who dares find fault with medical ethics is always told, sooner or later, that he doesn't know what he is talking about, and that, unwittingly, he is seeking to undermine the standards of a noble profession. We acknowledge the reproof in advance. Still, we do not understand how an adequate financial reward for successful research can damage the profession.

Some men work for the love of it; some men work for fame; some men work for money. The drive for money is a spur to workers in every other human activity. It is reasonable to suppose that the promise of a material reward will discourage no one from engaging in scientific investigation.

THE BROWNING CASE.

It was fortunate for the petitioners in the malodorous Browning case that separation proceedings are heard by a judge and not by twelve sappy males in a jury box. Sympathy for Browning in either event would not be very strong, but the public morale certainly could not be invigorated by the approval of such an enterprise as the defense represented. Perhaps the sentimental pretensions of male juries operate as restraint upon the unscrupulous or voluptuous adventures of the male sex, but we do not think they have made for good in the many conspicuous instances among our causes célèbres. The methods castigated by Mr. Justice Seeger can and will be used against the innocent as well as the guilty and their success would encourage their use.

Meanwhile the layman will wonder how far the enforceable ethics of the legal profession are operative in such cases as that of the Browns. Has counsel any responsibility in this instance?

Editorial of the DayTHE TIMELY GOLD RUSH.[Boston Transcript.]*

It is possible that this country has no crying need for a new supply of gold. Though few personally feel it, we are always reading about the "pioneers of gold." High prices and European hatred are attributed to it. We have enough gold upon which to base our currency, and since platinum came in we do not need it much for jewelry, since we have something more expensive. We cannot therefore regard the new discoveries of gold in Nevada and Arizona as satisfying a long felt want from the economic point of view. But for purposes of excitement, and as a timely contribution for the relief of the scarcity of romance in this country, nothing could be more welcome than a couple of gold rushes. It is a long time since we have had a real one; and when we contemplate the tremendous wealth that was given to the American imagination, the stimulation of character, the incentive to glorious adventure that accompanied or resulted from the wild trek to California in 1849, or even the fine saving passions, the heroic sufferings, and noble extravagance of the Klondike rush, we cannot fail to welcome the stampede to rushes.

The development of the human race seems to proceed by a series of orgies, and undoubtedly the gold rush is one of the least harmful of such demonstrations. It, of course, produces criminal excesses, and yet it does not increase the aggregate of crime; and, as everybody who has read Bret Harte knows, it inclines certain men who are commonly supposed to be bad to acts of sacrifice and self-abnegation in one another's service. Where shall we find a more lamb-like, a more benevolent set of men than the miners depicted in "The Luck of Roaring Camp," where all those bearded, wild men were on their knees before a baby? Even the gamblers are seen to be irresistibly impelled to the nobler forms of knight-errantry. And even if these accounts are regarded as the exaggerations of romantic writers, we can only rejoice in the stimulating effect that the gold rush has on the imaginations of men. Undoubtedly we need a gold rush for purely literary purposes if for no other. In our literature there is a terrible dearth just now, a crying need, of Buck Fanshaws, of John Oaknes, of Truthful James, of Dan Magraws and Tennessee's Partners. Let us wish good luck to the prospectors at Weepah and rich diggings for the story writers!

*[Copyright: 1927. By The Chicago Tribune.]HAIR DYES THAT ARE DANGEROUS.

MAN who speaks with authority says that the various hair dyes are dangerous in the sense that they do not poison the skin. In the course of time they may injure the texture of the hair somewhat. If they are not skillfully used the hair may take on assorted colors, some of which may not be attractive, but they do not set up inflammations of the skin nor do they absorb and poison organs elsewhere.

Dr. McCafferty says the following vegetable dyes are in varying amount of the hair dye market.

These are trade marked synthetic hair dyes on the market. These contain a poisonous dye and some antidotes like sulphate of soda or hypomelphite.

Just how free from danger they are has not been established.

The hair dye removers are either cymic acid or muriatic acid or oxalic acid. All of these are dangerous, especially cymic acid.

The hair blanches are usually peroxide or mixtures containing peroxide and other ingredients. They are reasonably harmless except that they make the hair coarse and brittle.

TO CORRECT HALITOSIS.

H. W. writes: How can halitosis be cured, and how is it caused?

REPLY:

Month washes and perfumes are of service in that they mask the odor. To cure you must find the cause and remove it.

Among the causes are: Disease, mouth and teeth, and, of course, the most frequent cause relates to the digestive organs. When that is the cause you must change some habits in order to effect a cure. Correct faulty bowel habits, exercise, by training and by change in diet.

Eat principally sour milk preparations, vegetables, fruits, cereals and bread.

HOW TO PUT ON FAT.

S. R. writes: Would you recommend the daily use of olive oil as a means of putting on weight?

REPLY:

No. Put on weight, go to bed at an early hour regularly; sleep long hours; cultivate equanimity.

Have a large bowl of milk and sugar rice each night just before going to bed.

and it was put upon them to make inquiry if they so early received notices of faintly. If they failed to make inquiry it would indicate gross negligence and malice on their part.

Tells of Their Visit.

Attorney Gallagher told of the visit of Mr. Petet and his publicity man, Robin Hood, to Mr. Black, business manager of the Independent.

"Mr. Petet and Mr. Black sat down together," he said. "Mr. Petet showed Mr. Black paragraph by paragraph and line by line where it was false. Mr. Black finally threw up his hands.

"If the rest is as bad as that, it is terrible," he said.

It was at this point that Senator Reed got into the argument. He arose and walked to the beach.

"If your honor please," he said, "the question is did Mr. Black and Mr. Petet have a conversation. You can't prove that by saying that Mr. Black said something to Mr. Cameron."

Honestly Believe It's True.

No newspaper, Senator Reed continued, may be held to account simply because somebody told it that something it printed was untrue. It cannot be held responsible for it. It may tell a newspaper that something in it is still true.

"The senator is wrong," interrupted Gallagher. "The very fact that some one who is not libeled who simply sees wrong being done, goes to tell the publisher of it, is only stronger evidence that cognizance should be taken of the protest.

Mr. Petet, he continued, left a detailed statement with them. He then took it all out, putting it down there. "Here is your statement—here are the facts."

The court ruled that the evidence Attorney Gallagher sought to bring out was not competent at this time.

Assumes Full Responsibility.

The testimony in which Mr. Cameron assumed full responsibility for the conduct and policy of the editorial end of the Independent was as follows:

Q.—Did you have any discussion with Dunn about these articles he was writing? A.—Yes, I presume so.

Q.—Was Sapiro mentioned? A.—I don't know offhand, but I believe his name came up.

The campaign depended entirely upon my own," Cameron said.

Q.—And to whom were you responsible? A.—To myself.

Q.—Upon what do you have that?

A.—Upon this, that if I am running a paper, I am going to run it and I am not going to be responsible to anybody but myself.

Q.—Did you ever discuss with Henry

Ford your editorship or the extent of your authority on the Independent?

A.—Except that he said, "You're the editor."

Q.—How did that come up? A.—Well, as I recall it, we had been hampered in the press for something or other, and the discussion arose, and then he said, "Well, you're the editor—all you need to do is to be sure you are right."

Concerning Some Letters.

Q.—Did you discuss with him the articles about the Jews? A.—Yes—as I remember it, I talked with him concerning some letters or comment we had received.

Q.—What did he say about the letters or comment? A.—Only the usual formality. You're the editor; get the facts; be sure you're right.

Mr. Cameron was asked concerning a conversation he had with Mr. Ford when the notice of Sapiro's $1,000 suit was received. But the court ruled on objections of the defense that he must not tell what that conversation was.

Gallagher read from an article concerning the prune growers of California which stated in headlines that they are right.

had put an "oriental millstone around their own necks."

"Isn't it a fact," Gallagher asked, "that the prune growers had signed a four year contract in 1917, and signed another in 1921 for seven years and that they were enjoying the most successful time of their lives?"

There were strenuous objections, but the court allowed the lawyer and Gallagher said he didn't know. There followed another question along the same line, and more objections were registered by the defense. Gallagher protested.

"Your honor," he said, "we have the right to bring out whether or not he knew the facts at the time he published these articles."

But the court ruled he must not answer.

LADY SLAYER INDORSES JAIL AS REST CURE

She Shows Its Benefits as Trial Begins.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK

(Picture on back page.) If it isn't convenient to run down to Hot Springs for a bit of a rest, just ponder on the recuperative possibilities of a nice, quiet sojourn in the women's quarters of the county jail.

Three women, all indicted for the murder of men, two husbands and a notorious sweethearts, have recently been trying out the jail as a substitute for a fashionable spa, and one, at least, is ready to write a hearty endorsement.

That one is Mrs. Bertha Hellman. Bertha, who was 42 on George Washington's birthday, went to jail about eight months ago. Then she was black and blue from the alleged beatings at the hands of her husband, Herman. She was ill from the effects of moonshine, at $1 a pint, which she and her husband are said to have sipped up. She was skinny and ill.

Wrought Up About Herman. Above all, she was hysterical and evidently wrought up over the events of that July afternoon when after a day of mutual drinking, she and Herman fell a-quarreling, and in the resultant tussle she strangled him to death, in self-defense, she claims.

But yesterday when she walked into Judge Emanuel Eller's court to take the defendant's chair she had some air, in spite of the fact that her near seal coat was so arid it gave her a dry, lifeless, angular appearance in winter line. Her black hair, untouched with gray, lay down over her forehead beneath her black hat, and went up in back in her approved bob. Her shoes, capacious and sensible, were nevertheless shiny new, and unflecked with dust, for she hasn't been anywhere for eight months. But she has not been unmindful of style notes, for her stockings were beige colored.

Gildens Note the Change. And she was 20 pounds heavier. The policemen who had arrested her that night, in the front room of her cottage at 1111 South Kilbourne avenue, remarked the improvement. So did her six children. So did Coroner's Physician Joseph Springer.

During a full in the day's proceedings Mrs. Hellman gave her views. "O, the jail's so nice," she said. "The matron, she's such a nice lady. I get lots of time for fancy work. I've made lots of pretty things."

Made Her Own Business. When she was asked about Mrs. Alma Olsen, formerly of 4320 Castello avenue, who goes on trial today for the murder of her husband, and about Florence Stokes, who was yesterday arraigned for the killing of her sweet heart, she said:

"No, I guess I don't know them. I and my own business. It's better, I think, if I do some of the cooking. I have a husband I stay close to the kitchen. That's fine."

A procession of Bertha's neighbors, called to the stand by Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and Harry Klatzko, in charge of the prosecution, took of going over to the Hellman front lawn, at twilight, the evening of July 29, 1926. A bottle was passed; passed again. The host and hostess, their guests recall, had already made quite a start on the party.

Resumes Quarrel Indoors.

The Hellmans got into a quarrel. She ordered him into the house, then pulled off his suspenders. They went in; the neighbors strolled home, with heavy sounds of anger echoing from beyond the cottage doors.

A few minutes later the neighbors returned and were greeted, they testified, by Mrs. Hellman, who raised a hushing finger and said, "Sh-h-h, he's dead."

The day's most dramatic testimony was five minutes of silence.

Mrs. Hellman's 16 year old daughter, Johanna, was called to the stand by the state. At the time of her mother's arrest Johanna had told the prosecutor that the morning of the murder her mother had said, "Today, Johanna, I kill your pa."

Don't Move Her Lips.

Yesterday, on the stand, Johanna was completely and permanently silent. They asked her again and again if her mother had told her anything that morning. She didn't answer, or move her lips, or shake her head.

Both the woman and the girl were crying.

After perhaps five minutes of silence, the prosecutors dismissed her and she made her way from the witness stand to a seat in the courtroom.

FAHERTY GRILLING IN EXPERTS SUIT ENTERS 3D WEEK

Kirkland Hammers Away to Get Answers.

In the courtroom of Circuit Judge Hugo M. Friend, a cross-examination which may set a record for length in Cook county entered on its third week yesterday. With only a few interested lawyers present, Michael J. Faherty, former president of the board of local improvements, engaged in a verbal duel with Attorney Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for THE CIRBINS in its suit to recover the attorney fees paid to Thompson real estate experts.

The cross-examination of Faherty by Attorney Kirkland which began early this month will make history in the law books, experts say. It is the record of a relentless questioner hammering away with queries at a witness who continually evaded or who "didn't know." It will continue going around in a circle until Mr. Faherty quits making evasive answers, "the lawyer declared.

Speed in Examining.

Mr. Kirkland questioned the witness about a statement he made in 1922 that the three real estate experts appraised and assessed $49,500 separate parcels of property in eleven months. The lawyer figured that the three men, working fourteen hours a day, including Sundays and holidays, would have had to sample a parcel every three minutes if the figures were true. Here is a sample of the questions and answers in regard to the proposition:

Q.—Do you think it would be possible for three human men to have done that amount of work? A.—I was not thinking of day's work.

Questioned About Assistants.

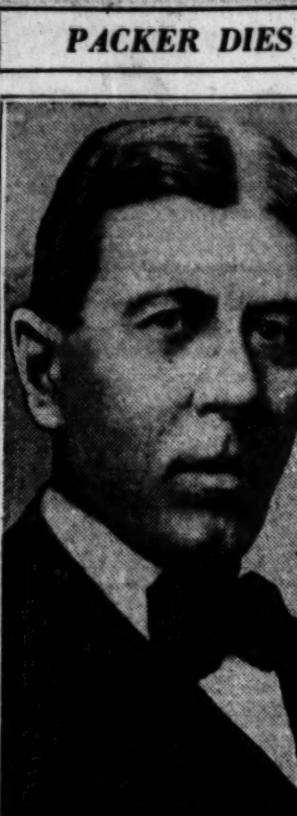

Q.—You say the hired large staffs of high priced assistants in order to turn out the work eleven months. Will you tell the court of a single high priced assistant or low priced assistant? A.—O, I think I had reference to the draftsmen and men of that kind that the builders might have to emply.

Q.—Will you tell the court a single efficiency expert that the experts hired? A.—I can't just now, but I know that at that time I had it in mind what I did.

Q.—Weren't you trying to fool the people when you said they appraised $49,500 parcels of property in eleven months? A.—No, sir; people like me.

To another similar question Faherty replied: "Why should I try to deceive the people?"

"I could tell you a dozen reasons why you might, if you ask me," Mr. Kirkland retorted. "But you'd better not ask me."

Charles W. Armour, vice president of Armour & Co., passes away at Kansas City, Mo., of pneumonia.

SENATE PASSES MICHIGAN'S HARD BOILED DRY LAW

Lansing, Mich., May 22.—[Special.]

—A dry measure providing a mandatory prison sentence of from one to five years for a fine of $1,500 or $1,000 for first offense against the laws prohibiting the sale, barter, transport or import for sale of liquor, was whipped through the Michigan senate today.

It had the backing of the Anti-Saloon league. While it was under consideration the galleries were packed with dry sympathizers, and a representative of the league was busily checking the documents on the attitude of members. The vote was 22 to 9.

As originally introduced by Senator Peter B. Lennon, the bill was even more severe. It proposed prison terms for home brewers. Fearing either the effect of public sentiment or possible abuse of the act, the senate eliminated the provision relative to manufacturing.

C. W. ARMOUR OF PACKER FAMILY IS DEAD AT 66

Kansas City, Mo., March 22.—(AP)—Charles W. Armour, 66, vice president and a director of Armour & Co., died at his home here today, leaving J. Ogden Armour of Chicago the only surviving member of the second generation of the famous packing family.

Mr. Armour, who had been in charge of the Armour interests in Kansas City since 1901, succumbed to pneumonia which developed as the result of injuries sustained in a fall a month ago.

Wife at Bedside.

Mrs. Armour, who was Rebecca Camp of Lyons, N. Y., and A. Watson Armstrong, nephew, were at the bedside. Other members of the family will arrive here tomorrow. Mr. Armour had no children.

Charles W. Armour was born in Madison county, New York, the son of A. W. Armour, one of the five brothers from a New York farm originally associated with a butcher shop in Milwaukee by Philip D. Armour, father of J. Ogden Armour, present head of the business, and John Plankington.

He came here as a youth with his father and settled in Chicago where he schoolled in all departments of the industry and later assumed control of the Armour interests in Kansas City.

Interested in Real Estate.

Mr. Armour was largely interested in the development of Kansas City purchasing years ago hundreds of acres of what now is some of the best residential land in the city. The Mission Hills, Armour Hills, Armour Fields and the newer Romanelli Gardens, extensive Kansas City additions, were built upon this land.

For his zeal in behalf of war sufferers he was decorated by Albert, king of the Belgians. He was chairman of the Kansas City war camp environments committee during the world war.

SHE CAN'T QUITE CONVINCE POLICE SHE ISN'T BANDIT

Girl and Two Men in Car Full of Loot.

Eva Wright is in wrong with the Austin police, though she says it isn't right of them to hold her. Police say her story of having jumped from the frying pan into the fire by accepting a ride from two men she didn't know after refusing to ride further with one of them, it is well known of yesterday morning, puts a bit of strain on their credibility.

Eva is 20, by her own story, and is a taxicab dancer, earning her nickel a dance as an "instructor" at the American dance hall on West Madison street. By her costume of blonde satin with voluminous chiffon sleeves and high collared neck, she might be a Paris Mannequin, and by her ultra bias manner that would do credit to a gold coast hostess.

Annoyed at Police.

Her explanation of her presence in an automobile loaded with loot from drug stores, including fountain pens, five gallons of alcohol, cigars, cigarettes, and $36 in small change, when it was halted after a mile chase by a squad car from the detective bureau, was given with an air of slightly annoyed concession.

She had a date with a man she had danced with frequently, she said, and after she left the dancing hall they drove off toward the end of the Crawford avenue car line, where her escort became suspicious of familiarity which she resented. After an argument, she jumped from the car and began to walk back toward the car line, where she was overtaken by the two men in the automobile, who invited her to ride with them, she said.

They "Seemed All Right."

They seemed all right, she said, so she accepted the ride, and they had gone nearly to Madison street when they sighted the squad car, and the driver stepped on the gas. The squad, led by Sgt. John Conley, captured them at Karlov and West Madison streets.

The three were all accused by Milton Horak, who charged him with driving chloroformed them and ransacking his drug store at Morton Grove. The men gave their names as Josephine, 25, of 3619 Wilcox street, and Patrick Maloney, 27, of 2312 West Harrison street. Horak declared they had been drinking with him in his store earlier in the evening.

FALL FROM WAGON IS FATAL.

Richard Atkins, 45, of 4142 South Marshall avenue, a teamster, was fatally injured yesterday when he fell from a wagon while working on the Santa Fe railroad tracks. He died at St. Luke's hospital of a skull fracture.

STATE QUIZZES 4 POLICEMEN IN MURDER TRIAL

Near Shooting, They Say,
but Didn't See It.

PARDON KENTUCKIAN AS "MURDERED" GIRL RETURNS HOME, ALIVE

Frankfort, Ky., March 22.—(AP)—One wrong righted by the pardoning today of Conley Dabney, Harlan county officials continued their investigation to determine why Marie Jackson, 27, was killed at her trial that she saw him kill. Marie Jackson, 16, Miss Vickery returned Saturday and denied that she knew Miss Jackson. Dabney was serving a life sentence for having "murdered" her.

Miss Jackson testified she had known the Vickery girl, and had seen Dabney kill her, but when they were brought together in the Harlan county jail Miss Jackson could not identify the girl.

Theodore F. Thiel, false witness, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell; Frank Klodzak, burglary, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell; John Johnson and Roosevelt Goldsmith, burglarized to 1 to 10 years each in the penitentiary; John Thomas, rape, sentenced to 3 years in the penitentiary; John Jacob Hopkins.

Richard Driscoll and Ralph O'Connell, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge William J. Lindsay.

George Mullwood, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Walter Zaczynski, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in Pontiac reformatory, by Judge Emanuel Miller.

The state was able to prove yesterday that Edward Dunn, colored head of the Afro-American Flat Spinners' union, a native of Chicago, Fred Janitor, who died of bullet wounds on Nov. 15. Who shot him and why he was shot, the jury in Judge Harry H. Miller's court apparently may not discover. Michael Sexton, 49 years old, an organizer for the Chicago Flat Spinners' union, is charged with the crime.

Police Close at Hand.
A detective bureau squad car was parked not a block away at the time of the shooting, trial testimony revealed yesterday. Two of the detectives in the squad were walking down Richmond street after two men they thought acted suspiciously, when Dunn was shot nearby in Fillmore street, they said on the stand. The other two members of the squad testified they were seated in the car, but did not see what preceded the shooting or who fired the first shot.

Sgt. William Maher and Patrolman Richard P. Powers were the members of the squad who said they were following two men down the street when the shooting occurred. George R. McNeill, chauffeur of the police car, had his head turned watching his commands when the shooting started, he said. John F. Gaffney, the other member of the squad, testified that he heard the guns, but saw nothing until after the shooting.

"I saw a man coming toward us on a bicycle after the shooting and I saw a Buick car pulling away," Gaffney testified.

U. S. ENDING OF MEXICO TREATY BARES NEW CRISIS

Revolt Predicted if Arms Embargo Is Lifted.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., March 22.—[Special.]—A new crisis in Mexican-American affairs was revealed today when the state department announced that the smuggling convention concluded with that country a year ago will be terminated on March 23. Significance was given this action, because this convention, among other things, prohibits the shipment of arms to Mexico, and revolutionists without the knowledge of the Calles government.

This action makes possible the lifting of the presidential arms embargo on the shipment of arms into Mexico after March 28. Under the present arrangements this government has a double embargo on arms shipments into Mexico, and as long as the treaty remains in force, it could not be lifted, even if that repudiated from the United States, even if the presidential embargo were removed.

Add to U. S. Disciplinary Power.
With the smuggling treaty in operation the lifting of the arms embargo would have little punitive or disciplinary effect. It directed against the Mexican government on account of its confiscation of the property of American citizens under the oil and land laws. With it removed the decks will be cleared and this government will be empowered to move if the President decides drastic action is necessary to protect American property in Mexico.

Viewed Only as Warning.
It is not believed that the termination plan is an act at this time. Rather, it is thought the action of the state department should be classified as a warning designed to bring the Calles government into line.

In the short statement issued by Secretary Kellogg no mention is made of arms shipments. The announcement simply points out that the United States has no commercial treaty with Mexico and that "in the circumstances it is not deemed desirable to continue in effect an arrangement which may, in certain contingencies, bind the United States to cooperation for the enforcement of laws or decrees relating to the importation of commodities of all sorts into another country with which this government has no arrangements, by treaty or otherwise, safeguarding American commerce against possible discrimination."

Unfriendly Act, Bar Says.

Senator Borland (Rep., Idaho), chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, declined to discuss the termination of the treaty, beyond asserting that the action of the state department is bound to be construed in Mexico and throughout Central and South America as an unfriendly act toward the Mexican people and against the Calles government.

Senator Norris (Rep., Neb.) was outspoken in his denunciation. He scored the failure or refusal of the state department to explain to the public "the continuing war" which prompted the decision to abrogate the treaty.

"That's an outright invitation to revolution," he said. "It is significant that no substantial reasons are given in this statement."

"It means that we are going to permit the shipment of arms and ammunition without restriction into Mexico. It is notice to all who want to over-

MEXICO CALLS TROOPS OF 5 STATES TO WAR ON GUANAJUATO REBELS

(Copyright: 1927: By the Chicago Tribune.)
MEXICO CITY, March 22.—The government called troops from five adjoining states to move against rebels in Guanajuato. Rodolfo Gallegos, the rebel chieftain, is reported to have plenty of arms and ammunition and dynamite. The Indians lacking revolutionary activity in the states of Jalisco, Guanajuato, Queretaro, and Michoacan, are taking the rebel forces.

It is reported that rebels are tearing up the Chihuahua railway in the canyon, and today a train was said to have been held up.

Rebels in the Canyon La Virgen, between Santa Fe and Cajones, fired on a train yesterday, commanding it to stop.

The engine sped up and rushed through the besieging force.

Fortunately the rebels had not torn up the track, so the train escaped.

throw the government of Mexico that the United States will put nothing in their way."

FEAR LIFTING OF ARMS EMBARGO.

MEXICO CITY, March 22.—(AP)—An announcement that the United States will terminate the anti-smuggling treaty with Mexico has started speculations here as to whether this move may be followed by the lifting of the American embargo against shipment of arms into Mexico.

It is recalled that President Calles himself declared that lifting of the arms embargo would precipitate revolution against his government by making it possible for rebels to obtain arms from the United States.

It is understood here that one of the reasons for the termination of the treaty is that President Calles has assumed authority to issue decree at any time prohibiting importation of any articles or increasing customs duties at will.

CHICAGO TOLD TO TAKE CHARGE OF MT. GREENWOOD

Busch Counsels City to Ignore Court Appeal.

City department heads and the board of education were notified yesterday by Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch to take over control of the village of Mount Greenwood, which recently decided by a majority of four votes to annex itself to Chicago.

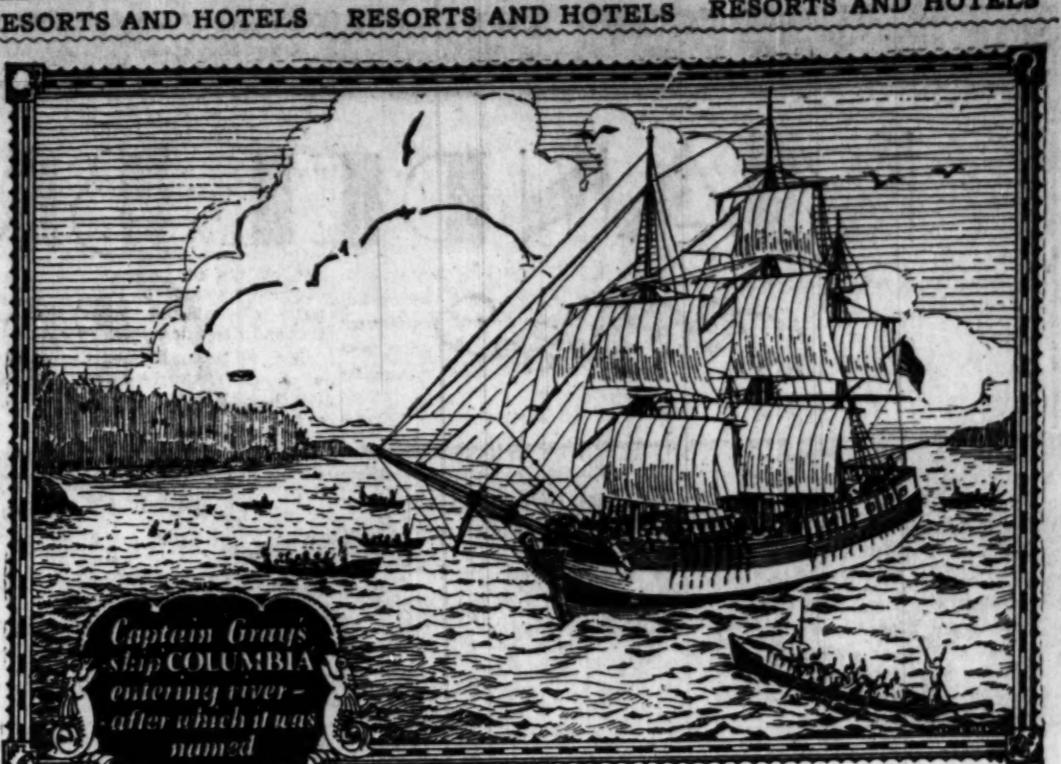

Residents of the suburb who are against annexation have appealed to the state Supreme court from a decision of Circuit Judge Ryner, deciding that the vote was in favor of annexation.

Busch counseled the city to ignore the appeal.

High feeling in the village over the squabble was declared partly responsible for the bombing yesterday morning of the home of Ira C. Hamilton, 11200 South Kedzie avenue, instructor in civics and history at Lindblom high school. About $1,000 damage was done. The instructor, his wife, and four children were not injured.

Mr. Hamilton was a worker for annexation, but said he believed that the bombing was the result of an investigation into the bombing into various institutions in the village. The investigation hit a village official who may be arrested today, according to Lieut. C. A. Wolf of the county highway police.

OVER A HUNDRED YEARS AGO AND... NOW

A hundred years ago and... Now

OVER a hundred years ago the attention of the whole civilized world was centered on the Pacific Coast. The people were thrilled and fascinated by the stories of adventure of Captains Cook, Vancouver, Gray and Quadra, and since that time every American lad has been enthralled with the tales of the goldseekers, the frontiersmen, the fur-traders, Indians, the pioneers, and the explorers of the Pacific Coast.

The Pacific Coast was a land of enchantment in those days. It still is. And you and your family can see this land of fascination, of charm, and enchantment, so easily. It is not necessary to take a year's voyage, or a nine month's trek—but simply board one of the luxurious transcontinental trains, with all the comforts of a first-class hotel, and land in the center of the Pacific Coast... Oregon, the scenic and vacation state... within two or three days. Or, you can drive your own car over the Old Oregon Trail, America's most historic highway.

The eyes of the world are again centered on the Pacific Coast. The Pacific Coast Empire Association, representing California, Washington, Oregon, and the whole Coast, is broadcasting to the world the marvelous panorama of this "Nature's Wonderland" and the richness of its natural resources, the opportunities that await new people in industrial enterprises, the favorable conditions under which our people live, especially in the country districts, and the advantages of profitable intensive and diversified farming.

Oregon, the center of the coast, is rich in all of these things and offers all these advantages to the newcomer.

CHICAGO LOWERS LAKES 4 INCHES, ENGINEER FINDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]
Washington, D. C., March 22.—(Special)—Evidence that the lowering effect on Lakes Michigan and Huron of the Chicago water diversion is less than four inches, was introduced today before Charles Evans Hughes, special master in the lake levels suits instituted by Wisconsin and other lake states. The figure, the lowest ever attributed to this diversion was set by Gardner Williams, nationally known engineer.

Appearing as a witness for Illinois, the Chicago sanitary district and Mississippi valley states, Mr. Williams gave detailed figures showing how he had arrived at his figure.

Army engineers previously testified that the Chicago diversion lowers the lake levels by six inches. Mr. Williams today set an 8,500 cubic second foot diversion at three and three-quarters inches. The present diversion at Chicago is something less than that amount.

If the water diversion at Chicago were stopped and the size of the present outlets of Lake Huron left untouched, he said, the lakes would gradually rise slightly more than three inches in the next eight years.

Mr. Williams blamed the deepening of the St. Clair river for much of the lowering of the great lakes. Sand dredging by Canada lowered the lakes still further, he said.

FINANCIERS TO LEND TO LOSERS IN FLORIDA BANKS

Palm Beach, Fla., March 22.—(UPI)—A group of financiers wintering in Palm Beach today pledged approximately $400,000 to be lent to small depositors of the four banks which suspended operations here recently.

Mayor Cooper C. Lightfoot of Palm Beach was a member of the committee which also included John S. Phillips and Edward Shearson, New York capitalists.

The plan will affect the small depositors of the Farmers Bank and Trust company, the First American Bank and Trust company, the Northwest Bank and Trust company, all of West Palm Beach, and the First Bank and Trust company of Palm Beach.

Money will be lent from the fund at 2 per cent interest on amounts under $1,000.

Music Clubs Finding Favor in Elmer's Ears

Hopes They Will Be as Popular as Cantatas.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

From the high places in Chicago's musical world came the famous Apollo Musical Club, Harrison M. Wiley conducting, giving us Coleridge-Taylor's famous cantata, "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" over W-G-N, 926, last night. And another happy evening was made the merrier.

I don't know whether the club or the cantata comes first in radio interest. Both merit posterity. The cantata's long life was destined at its conception.

The club's posterity seems uncertain. A fund for its perpetuation is being gathered, the gathering center being announced as 245 South Washington avenue.

Three more programs by this club at W-G-N, the next one next Tuesday, 7:30.

The Grinnell College Glee club at 11 o'clock concluded a half hour program, W-G-N. Seems to me their program was even a better one than that Sunday afternoon. And the singing seemed richer, smoother, more musically serious. As on Sunday, selections were sung unaccompanied, always an additional achievement. If their bass soloist, William Miller, should lose his railroad ticket to Grinnell, he could find a creditable run on Chicago's musical ladder.

Knox college glee club gave a lengthy program at W-L-S, 8 to 9. This was a typical college miscellaneous program of choral and solo numbers. We can assure the various college clubs that their work was greatly appreciated. May their rewards be many.

The grand opera concert, W-J-Z-R-X-W, 8 to 9, seems to enter next among the outstanding, high class and highly enjoyable programs.

Crowds See Stars Tune Up
for Atlanta Golf Tourney

Harland Rohm, brilliant writer of golf, will cover the Southern Golf association's open golf tournament for The Tribune.

Atlanta, Ga., March 22.—[Special.] With entries still open, more than 250 names had been registered at the East Lake Country club tonight for the Southern golf association's open golf tournament which starts Thursday.

More than 100 teams have been given starting times for the professional—amateur four ball event tomorrow in which ama-eateurs will play for club handicaps.

Cold weather today following heavy showers yesterday afternoon failed to keep most of the entrants from playing practice rounds.

Gallery Follows Cruckleshank.

For many Atlanta golf enthusiasts this is the first opportunity they have had to see the leading professionals who have been the main rivals of Atlanta's own Bobby Jones in open championships and even practice play to day brought out large galleries. The biggest crowd followed a match in which Tommy Armour and Bobby Cruckleshank, winners of the recent four ball tournament at Miami, won by 1 up over Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen. Hagen and Sarazen got here yesterday. They made the trip together from Florida in Sarazen's automobile.

Hagen and Jones will be partners tomorrow in the four ball event. They will play with Cruckleshank and Jesse Sweetser. The latter has changed his mind about remaking out of the open tournament. Sixty-nine eight holes holes are to be played Thursday and eight on Friday. Jesse believes one round a day will not be too much for him. If he is well up at the end of the first two rounds and he feels equal to it, Sweetser then will stay in the hunt for the final thirty-six holes Saturday.

Champion Field Entered.

The field entered here includes all of those who finished in the first ten in the national open at Scottsdale last year except Willie Hunter of Los Angeles and Danny Williams of the Shadrockson County club, Westfield, N. J. Almost every professional champion of note in the country is entered except MacDonald Smith and Harry Cooper.

BOROTRA ROMPS AHEAD IN QUEST OF U. S. CROWN

Reaches Quarter-Finals of Indoor Meet.

New York, March 22.—[Special]—Three seeded metropolitan tennis players today trounced Jean Borotra, French star, into the quarter finals of the national indoor championship.

Paced by the brilliant stroking of the basque, who routed Herbert L. Bowman, former New York state champion, John Van Ryn of Princeton university, Percy Kynaston of Rockville Center, N. Y., and Dr. George King of New York gained their brackets.

Kynaston to Meet Basque.

Borotra's decisive victory provided the most finished exhibition of tennis in the fourth round. In spite of desperate court covering, Bowman was able to win only one game in his set. King, only "fifth ten" American in the tournament, and Kynaston also moved up with straight set victories. Kynaston's triumph qualified him to meet Borotra tomorrow for a place in the semi-finals.

Hunter Extended.

Jacques Brunson, compatriot of Borotra, and Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., likewise were extended. William Aydelotte was five times within a single point of first set victory in his match against Brunson. After stemming the opening rush of his rival, Brunson sped through the final set 6-0 after saving the first set at 7.

Hunter unexpectedly was compelled to go three sets to accomplish the elimination of a youthful New Yorker, L. Chapman Haff, 2-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Edward P. Weston Is Struck by Auto; Condition Critical

New York, March 22.—[Special]—Edward Payson Weston, the man who won fame by walking across continents, tonight is struggling for life in St. Vincent's hospital after being struck down by one of the automobiles he always laughed at as the vehicle of weakness. The cab struck him as he was ambling slowly across 9th avenue at 14th street Sunday evening.

Only today it was learned that he lies in delirium with concussion of the brain. The X-ray photographs show that the skull was not fractured.

There is a deep gash on the right side of his head with its thin white hair, and his left shoulder a badly cut and bruised. At the hospital it was reported tonight that he will recover.

EDWARD PAYSON WESTON.

Lind of Cleveland Makes Triple Play, Unassisted

Lakeland, Fla., March 22.—[Special]—Carl Lind, diminutive shortstop from the Peoria club of the Three Eyes league, today made the first unassisted triple play of the season in a game between the Cleveland Indians regulars and yankees.

In the sixth inning, Senn was on second base, Burns on first, and Sewell, the hard hitting short stop of the Indians, was at bat. Sewell lined a drive that appeared too high for him, but he grabbed it with one hand, stepped on second base to retire Senn, and then tagged Burns, who was on his way to second. With Joe Shantz and Willie Huddlin pitching almost unhittable ball, the rookies won the game, 10 to 6.

After the game tomorrow with the Indians, Cleveland will close its campaign. Several exhibition games will be played throughout the state before the McCallister warriors start for the north.

N. Y. HOLDOUTS FACE BAN.

New York, March 22.—[Special]—Unions of Pennock and Eddie Roush, holdouts, report to the New York club before the season begins that they will be placed on the ineligible list and fined, officials of the Yankees and Giants said today. Pennock, one of the best left-handers in the game and mainstay of the Yanks, refuses to talk to his employers. He is raising silver foxes at his farm in Pennsylvania, preferring this to a yearly contract of $18,000.

CELTIC CAGERS INVADE BRUINS' LAIR TONIGHT

The New York Celts will make their last appearance of the year here tonight at the Broadway arms, where they meet the Chicago Bruins in an American pro basketball league game. Since Stonebraker and Russell have joined the north side five, the teamwork of the quintet has improved so that for the first time in years the Bruins are rated sufficiently high to give the invaders a real battle.

Nate Thurmond, Lockett, and Banks are the scoring aces that the Celts must stop to win the game, while Dehert and Barry are guards of highest ability who will tax the offensive power of the Chicago five.

MAY MOVE GOOD ROADS CONGRESS FROM CHICAGO

Cleveland Seeks Highway Show for 1928.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

Charles M. Upham, managing director of the American Road Builders' association, arrived in Chicago yesterday to complete arrangements for the annual good roads congress and highway show which, for the last six years, has made Chicago the capital of the highway world during each January convention. The chief point at issue now, the director said, is the location of the 1928 exposition.

"We have made Chicago headquarters for these great highway expositions for years and attendance at each of the annuals has grown to mammoth proportions," he added. "At the last show, however, attractive offers were made to the association by many other cities and many of the exhibitors seemed to favor a change of location in 1928. The question now is, which city can best serve both Chicago and Cleveland and a vote is being taken to decide where the 30,000 or more delegates and the hundreds of show exhibitors meet next year. Announcement of the location will be made as soon as directors of the association have fully considered the advantages of the two cities."

Mayors of cities and towns along the Ogden avenue highway are scheduled to meet today at the headquarters of the Ogden Avenue Association, 220 South State street, to launch the further widening and development of this important Chicago gateway highway. The road is one of the first designated for widening under the joint county and state emergency widening plan, and officials of neighboring cities, including Naperville and Aurora, hope to convince the state that its 40 foot pavement should be carried on through neighboring counties.

BY BOB BECKER.

Middle west dog fans will have an opportunity to look over an assembly of more than 1,000 fancy canines of all breeds this week, as Friday, March 25, the annual Chicago dog show opens and continues through Sunday, March 27. If you want to see some small fortunes "on the hoof," visit the armory at 16th street and Michigan avenue and get acquainted with the blue bloods of the dog world.

Sportsmen interested in hunting should be attracted to this show, as there will be a large number of hunting dogs on hand. According to reports received from the Wisconsin springer spaniel fanciers, this breed is going to be well represented. Dean Swift of Edgerton, Wis., writes us that eight dandy springers from that town are coming down to the show. Included in this bunch will be Thibault of Avondale (best of breed in the Toledo and Columbus shows), owned by James Menhall; Gypsy, owned by

FISH LURES DISCUSSED

Fishing tackle manufacturers of America met in their annual convention yesterday at the Hotel Sherman and centered their discussion around production of the slogan, "Fish and feel fit." Sixteen manufacturers of the middle west attended.

According to the delegates a new era in fishing has started. Instead of quietly sitting on the bank or in a boat, waiting for fish to come to him, the modern sportsman, equipped with well designed lures, seeks the fish.

The game fish and the latest in mechanical bait to snare these fellows were subjects of extended discussion.

FINDS WAY TO AVOID MUSCLE-LAMENESS

Athlete has simple method of keeping in perfect form.

Athletes and trainers know how painful and disabling muscle-lameness can be. And they can tell you the best way to overcome it.

"In my training work as an athlete," writes Frank B. Conover, of 175 South St., Jersey City, N. J., "I have used Sloan's Liniment for the past twelve years and found it most effective for soreness caused by vigorous exercise."

It is marvelous how ache and stiffness in lame muscles yield to the magic of Sloan's. Just a little patted on lightly and healing new blood tinges through the hurt place.

Away go "fatigue-poisons." Sore muscles limber up and stop aching. Try it. All druggists—35 cents.

pipe-pleasure

GIVE the sign to the man behind the counter and he will hand you a tin of the grandest tobacco that ever snuggled in the bowl of a pipe. Throw back the lid and revel in that tantalizing aroma of real tobacco. Load up and light up. There you have it!

That is Prince Albert, Gentlemen—smoked by more men than any other pipe-brand. This overwhelming preference didn't "just happen." It exists for the single reason that P. A. brings more deep-down, solid satisfaction out of a pipe than any diet you could put it on.

The very first pull will tell you that Prince Albert is unlike any other tobacco. Notice how cool it smokes, no matter how wide you open the throttle. Notice, too, that it doesn't bite the tongue or parch the throat, no matter how often you fill-up and pull-in.

You may think you are all set on a smoke-program. Fair enough. But don't let that interfere with your getting a first-hand knowledge of what P. A. offers in real pipe-pleasure. Where there's so much P. A. smoke, there must be the fire of truth. Try it and see!

It Pays to Advertise in the World's Greatest Newspaper

SUPREME IN CHICAGO

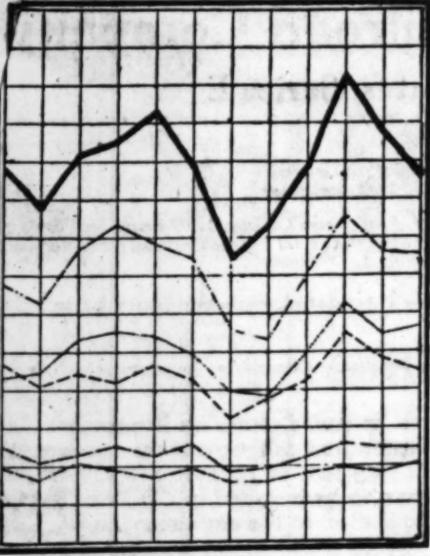

First in Advertising First in Circulation

The heavy line shows The Tribune's local advertising lineage in comparison with the other Chicago newspapers.

In national advertising The Tribune is far ahead of all other Chicago newspapers.

Note the lineage charts showing The Tribune's supremacy in local, in national and in the above chart, in total display advertising. The Tribune's position is unchallenged. Every month in the year The Tribune leads all other Chicago newspapers.

A GAIN in 1926 The Tribune led all other Chicago newspapers in advertising lineage. Total advertising lineage of the four leading newspapers for the year 1926:

Chicago Tribune	32,715,561 Lines
Daily News	21,811,512 Lines
Chicago American	13,726,483 Lines
Herald and Examiner	12,989,868 Lines

The Tribune's Volume of Advertising Is More Than Ten Million Lines Greater Than the Second Chicago Newspaper

The Tribune led in all three groups—national, local and want advertising. Advertisers in 1926 bought 37.3% more display advertising in The Tribune than in the next Chicago newspaper. The Tribune carried 32.3% of all display advertising appearing in Chicago newspapers. In want ads, The Tribune carried more lineage than the next three newspapers combined.

Of the total gains in display lineage enjoyed by all Chicago newspapers in 1926, The Tribune had 34.5%. This was a 10.3% greater gain than that made by the next paper.

The Tribune carried almost twice as much national advertising as any other Chicago newspaper. The leaders in national advertising were:

	1926 Lineage	Per cent of Total
Chicago Tribune	8,077,725 Lines	36.8%
Daily News	4,047,517 Lines	18.4%
Herald and Examiner	3,707,907 Lines	16.9%
Chicago American	3,172,827 Lines	14.5%

The Tribune Carried 97% More National Lineage Than the Second Chicago Newspaper

Antiquated slogans often are relinquished in fact, if not in print. Antiquated slogans, once true, are sometimes clutched at and, by devious methods of figuring, the slogans are given a semblance of truth. Artificial respiration is sometimes used to keep slogan users where they once were, and where they should like to continue to be. This page is dedicated to a desire to clear up any uncertainty as to who is "first in Chicago."

An analysis is here presented of the standing of the leading newspapers in the 28 advertising classifications in which the Advertising Record company keeps lineage figures. A perusal of this shows quickly how the Chicago newspapers stand on advertising lineage.

Chicago Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

DREADFUL STORY OF THE OSTRICH

A FEW days ago an agency space buyer phoned to ask us about the advertising of a certain toothpaste. "We've got some stuff from one of your competitors saying they carried this toothpaste exclusively," said the space buyer. "If I'm not crazy I've seen it in The Tribune."

"Not crazy at all," we replied. "That toothpaste company spent two and half times as much in The Tribune last year as it did in the only other newspaper it used in Chicago."

"How about this stuff, then?"

"Well," said we. "If you look closely you'll probably find a qualifying adjective tucked deftly away somewhere. Look for the word 'daily.' That means that the $30,000 spent in our Sunday rotogravure section doesn't count. Their statistician has his fingers crossed whenever he sees a Sunday issue of The Tribune."

The space buyer found the "daily" and got the idea. Being on the subject, we continued:

"Maybe you've seen their ads in the trade papers, about their well-known baking powder advertisement. You'd think this advertiser couldn't see any other newspaper. The fact is, however, The Tribune carried considerably more lineage on this product. The company spends twice as much money with us. But it's mostly in the Sunday issue."

"Do you let them get away with that?" asked the space buyer.

"Well," said we. "What's the sense of getting into an alley scrap? They can't kid many advertisers very long. You know if they had any better testimonials, they'd use 'em, instead."

"Maybe you're right."

"If you ever catch us pointing with pride to successes where some other newspaper did most of the work—no matter on what day of the week they did it—you can be sure we're slipping fast. Incidentally our friends up the street claim supremacy in automobile advertising about this time every year. However we carried in 52 Sunday issues alone last year 1,139,098 lines of automobile advertising while they carried 668,235 lines in 309 issues."

"It must be comforting to them," remarked the space buyer, "to annual that sort of competition."

"Sure," said we. "You know the story of the ostrich."

"Daily, except Sunday"

The Tribune printed ten million agate lines more than any other Chicago newspaper. The News, according to one of its advertisements published "the greatest volume of advertising ever carried by a Chicago daily newspaper."

What's the answer? When the Chicago News says "daily" it means what the railroad time tables call "daily, except Sunday." It never thinks of the Sunday issues of The Tribune for publication except in the four cases (out of 28 chances) where the News leads in total lineage. Or is it in circulation that the News leads? Here are the figures:

NEWS—
Week days .. 426,855 (December average.)

TRIBUNE—
Week days .. 751,916 (December average.)
Sundays 1,172,931 (December average.)

The Tribune's week day circulation in city and suburbs alone is 150,000 greater than the total circulation of the News.

Would it seem too unfriendly to inquire: "First in what?"

CHICAGOSEES NEW LIVING STANDARD SET BY MODERN INDUSTRY

BY HARPER LEECH.

After the writings and during the publication of the series on managerial compensation in this column, General Motors published its stockholders an account of its system. Those interested, and they appear numerous, should read this pamphlet. Its publication is a substantial addition to the scant literature of the subject. General Motors again has performed a public service.

In the study of managerial problems of the modern American corporation certain ideas present themselves. One of the most important is that in industry is the child of mass production. Mass production made absentee ownership inevitable. At the same time it is creating social conditions which are, in effect, a new form of economic democracy. Increased productivity has produced the "consumerism" of modern business though it has created the surplus of capital seeking investment, which leads to the widely dispersed ownership of industries.

In short, there is in progress a great leveling-up of the living standards of the people. This actual democratization of life and conditions is being accomplished by a small class of industrial managers who are selected on the basis of competition in efficiency.

The rewards of this class must be large enough to attract the highest talents; but, relative to total production, they are far less than the reward the old owner-managers of the smaller scale industries received. As a consequence of production increased, and as efficiency of production increases, managerial compensation, while increasing absolutely, appears to be decreasing relative to total production.

Here we have something that has a bearing on the whole problem of democracy, which is being discussed so ardently, and, as usual, so inadequately, by our professional intellectuals. By reviving the state and the statesmen of the problems of bread and butter, the modern corporation can democratize the political by lightening its tasks. It is taking from the political arena the complicated issues of economics and leaving for decision, by political methods mainly, broad moral issues and questions of national policy.

We hear a great deal of the failure of democracy. We are told that modern societies must find some way of providing a disinterested aristocracy to direct the problems of mankind. Credulous industrialists prefer to find a solution in the emergence of such gifted groups and the simultaneous emergence of social religions in the persons and programs of the Fascisti or the bolsheviki.

What they are overlooking is the actual arrival of a socially minded but competitively selected class of industrial managers in America, who are actually doing the things they say they would like to see done. This industrial class is promoting science, making life more livable and cultural advance possible. It is doing its social work by indirection; hence it cannot degenerate into the tyranny of bureaucracy.

Commonwealth Power to Pay Extra Dividend

The Commonwealth Power corporation yesterday declared an extra of 50 cents and gave stockholders the right to subscribe to additional common at $40 a share on the basis of one share for each ten held. The Joseph Dixon Crucible company declared 5 per cent extra.

Bank of Italy stockholders authorized the previously announced split-up on the basis of four shares of $25 par for each one of $100 par, together with the 200 per cent stock dividend on the auxiliary corporation to keep the number of shares in line.

The Great Northern Ore company declared a distribution of 75 cents a share on certificates of beneficial interest. Previous disbursements were 75 cents a share in April and December, 1926. The Standard Screw declared 2 per cent quarterly, compared with 2½ in the previous quarter.

WALL STREET NOTES

NEW YORK, March 22.—(P)—The downward tendency in prices of curb market securities which has featured dealings in recent sessions was accelerated today by further liquidation in nearly all issues. Durant, Morgan, the Industrial Finance Corp., advanced 24 points to 10, duplicating the record high on the announcement that Mr. Durant planned to devote his entire time to the automobile business.

Oils were liquidated sharply as a result of a further extension of gasoline and crude oil price cuts. Humble, Vacuum, Darby, and Illinois Pipe Line yielded a point or more against the rest of the others showed fractional recessions.

Public utilities, fortified by the recent publication of excellent current earnings statements by some of the largest companies, displayed a general advance.

For the first time since it was listed on the curb five years ago one sale of West Jersey and Seabrook railroad stock, which is controlled by the Pennsylvania, was made at 64¢. Wall street had heard rumors that the Pennsylvania was negotiating for the minority holdings of this stock.

Prices drifted lower in the bond market, with a further falling off in volume of trading. Prices of high grade investments showed the first heave since the government's new financing paved the way for the market.

Railway first mortgages, which have been among the leaders in the advance, dropped noticeably as demand tapered off. New Haven at 4.12¢, Louisville and Nashville 7¢, with two of the others showed fractional recessions.

Railway debentures, to-wit: That the security shall always be of a type that insures the payment of the Principal ON THE DUE DATE. For surety sake, your Mortgage Investments should be marked HEINEMANN.

THE LADIES HIT WOOL INDUSTRY A STIFFISH JOLT

BY O. A. MATHER.

American women aren't wearing them any more—those voluminous woolen garments. So, once more, a change in style has brought hardship to an industry.

An abnormally poor demand for woolen goods, coupled with a decline in raw wool prices, last year caused an operating loss of $2,103,143 to the American Woolen company, according to President Andrew G. Pierce in his annual report. After depreciation charges and payment of preferred stock dividends there was a deficit of $7,727,545, which reduced the company's surplus to $15,587,021. The combination of falling raw material markets and a dwindling demand for finished goods made manufacturing and merchandising extremely difficult.

Shrinkage in Inventory.

An average of 20 per cent decrease in wool prices caused a serious shrinkage in both inventories of raw materials and stocks of goods either finished or in process.

But the company's overhead costs have been reduced to the lowest level in years, a conservative buying policy and a new advertising policy have been adopted, and the largest plants now are operating at a profit. The company ended 1926 in the best financial condition in nearly 20 years.

Bank loans were reduced by more than $5,700,000, cash was increased by more than $1,000,000, and working capital of $84,000,000 is ample for all needs.

The commerce department announced yesterday that the woolen and worsted industry last year manufactured goods valued at $957,790,828, a decrease of nearly 10 per cent from 1925.

Record Freight Traffic.

Reports on current business offered a decidedly cheerful picture. Evidence of an abnormally large flow of commodities was afforded by weekly report on railroad car loadings. These reached 1,068,715 cars for the week ended March 12 and set a new railroad record.

This is the first time that freight loadings for any one week have exceeded 1,000,000 cars at this season of the year. In 1926, the first million car week was attained in May, while in 1925 it was not reached until July.

The current total marks an increase of 178,400 over the preceding week and also of 35,200 for the year ago. While coal loadings showed the largest gain over last year, there were also sizeable increases in merchandise and less than carload freight and miscellaneous freight. Forest products and coke declined.

Gains in Crude Oil Output.

Opposite tendencies were reported by the petroleum and steel industries. The daily average gross crude oil production increased 2,400 barrels to a total of 5,462,450 barrels a day last week, according to the American Petroleum Institute. This was entirely the result of an increase of 6,100 barrels a day in California, as the output east of the Rocky mountains declined 3,700 barrels a day. Operators in the Seminole field in Oklahoma again yesterday failed to reach an agreement on the production.

Steel mill order books are most diversified in the history of the industry in the Chicago district. Production of steel is as close to capacity as mechanically possible. Chicago steel producers are operating between 90 and 95 per cent.

J. K. Mosser Leather Co. Reports Better Business

Improvement in the leather industry, which has been abnormally slow in recovering from the post-war depression, is seen in the annual report of the J. K. Mosser leather company, the stock of which is owned by Armstrong & Co., which was issued last night. Earnings available for dividends totaled $1,062,379, equivalent to $1.89 a share on the outstanding stock. Current assets are carried at $1,324,542 and current liabilities at $1,388,746. Improvement in business and satisfactory profits in 1927 are forecast by H. W. Boyd, president.

Starring Dulcie Jayne

By VIRGINIA TRACY.

SYNOPSIS.
Cornelia Marsh, employed in the scenario department of Herzog's Perfection Motion Picture studio, at Fort Lee, N. J., learns with sorrow that Henry Horner, the head of the studio, has been fired by Lyman Herzog, son of the owner of the studio. Every one knew that Lyman is jealous of Henry because he is in love with Dulcie Jayne, the star of the studio, but Dulcie seems to prefer her director, Daniel K. Leland.

Mr. Herzog suggests to Lyman that they feature Leland as an actor as well as a director, and this causes a quarrel between them. Old Mr. Herzog suffers a stroke of paralysis and a doctor, Lyman, lets in a chair to him. His first independent action is to fire Leland, who takes his dismissal coolly. Lyman meets Dulcie on location and falls in love with her. Benny Rosencranz, Leland's camera man, comes to her aid and saves her from himself.

Cornelia Marsh is detained at the studio by Lyman after the others have gone to write a scenario. She goes to see Mr. Herzog, who is having a dinner party in honor of his retirement. She meets her mother downtown and takes her to dinner and the theater as a surprise. Lyman refuses. Cornelia misses the last trolley, but Dulcie Jayne arrives in time to meet her. The two go to a restaurant. Dulcie and Cornelia and her mother are in love with each other. Old Mr. Herzog suffers a stroke of paralysis and a doctor, Lyman, lets in a chair to him. His first independent action is to fire Leland, who takes his dismissal coolly. Lyman meets Dulcie on location and falls in love with her. Benny Rosencranz, Leland's camera man, comes to her aid and saves her from himself.

INSTALLMENT LII.
DULCIE MAKES A PLEDGE.

Around the living room table the conspirators conspired. First—and most appalling—to get a passport before night! To take passage at this hour in the evening! To negotiate the check book! These children planned all details during breakfast. Dulcie, naturally, Henry eat, and Henry, it is not to be denied, stop. Yet all was planned around that table besides which an hour ago Dulcie had waited to tell Cornelia that she would not sail and all was over! That table which two months ago she had sat at, writing dinner as she was related to her mother that Mr. Horner had been dismissed from Herzog's. It was to one of the marriage of true minds admit impediment.

Evening fell, enveloping the steel and stone city in a dream come true. The Marshes were alone in the Bronx flat. Cornelia should have been ashamed to look at her mother and she was parted from Dulcie. But her shame was washed with happy pride and her loneliness swam in fulfillment. She and life had become reconciled.

After all, it was not a liar-life. Youth, spring, moon dusk, music were a mere ignis fatuus; they were as real as rent; there were people who could carry them, in their pockets and feel them there. The facts of her existence had made a fool of her, but life itself had not made a fool of her. The things she had believed in as a girl—young sensation, honor, beauty, the promise of the poets, the heart's emotion—were not one vast lie which nobody for a moment suspected, but a lie which was too big to be believed. Dulcie, who was beginning to realize it to be otherwise, and laughed at; they were truly old now, blowing nowhere; a wise woman, inside the game. And so she was no longer afraid of the dust, which enswathed also, somewhere, those dear others whom even the facts of existence had not made fools of. With closed eyes she saw again the assuagement of their rush together and the blind glamour of their tears; there in the twilight she felt her own face brushed by their soft gropings, cheek on cheek, and their young kisses came sweet on her lips.

On that night Lyman, too, knew joy. All his publicity for Dulcie's sailing had flared like a night-blooming cereus in the evening papers. Yes, he had done well to really throw himself. To let the number of celebrants surpass the guests and book the best in Cherbourg, whence there would be rushed down to Maximilian and flung across the Mediterranean as he was great a variety of racing motors, special trains, yachts, and airplanes as he could get into print. Here now, was the smile of the gods made visible by the presence of all those very celebrities—or nearly all—having allowed him to lure them to a banquet for Dulcie Jayne in the Ritz dining room of the Majestic as she moved down the bay at midnight. Even the decorations had been his happy thought—all English and American colors, so that the banquet could be written of as having taken place under two flags! And look at Dulcie! Was this the sulky kid who used to scurry along the halls of Herzog's "as if they burned her feet"? Who, the very day of sailing, had disappeared on them, frightening them all out and, after hours of shopping, apparently, reappeared fit as a queen! Victoria Lyman, who knew as little as most first class passengers about any of his adventure tucked away in the steerage.

The guests, themselves, had gathered before the radiance of the stars. No one had ever thought of her as a beauty. Nor yet as of one whose charm was angelic. Yet, this night, what was honeydew in comparison with her voice? And, all perfumed and coiffed though she was, jeweled and bewinged, all silver and turquoise, forget-me-nots glistening her hair, surely was her being's mere bloom and breath which had drunk the milk of paradise!

How could they guess that she had dreamed herself dressing for Henry? That she had smiled into her mirror, "Let's pretend it's for our wedding!" Till she grew all crowded, all veiled, poor child, and shimmering with excitement, with suspense, for that moment when, through some window, past some maidens, Henry should steal a look at her and she at Henry.

Wanted flowering! Empty bosom! Slow fading back of the rich blood which had run! Yet still she was unable to believe anything so arid so senseless as that Henry, on the very same ship, could catch me led, glimpse of her, but the simply would not be able to show her to him at all!

In the darkness of the ship, she crept to the deck to watch the lights and blazed their streaming, bubbling glasses to the fast fading skyline of New York she ran to the railing and looked down. Where was that other deck? Only dark water. And foam's dying magic. Then it was to her they were making a toast. How ashamed she felt, set apart like this from the one of which she was vainglorious! Decked as she was for love, thrilled with love and music, motion, adventure, night and the stars, all her heart a pure bride's heart! But the bridegroom, where was he?

So, while Lyman, who had not whistled his favorite song very often lately, had himself flinging back to the fading town—

"Her kiss,
Her kiss.
Her kisses come too high.
I'll tell you girl good-by—"

Nelly was pleading herself: "It won't be this way when we come back. We won't wait. We'll get married in Algiers. The minute Lyman breaks my heart, the very minute!"

By mid-November Mrs. Marsh, having ceased talking about hay fever and begun acknowledging the presence of "my cold," felt tired out and admitted that the one really agreeable thing to do would be to leave the Bronx flat and all the plagues that it was heir to for some pleasant spot just as soon as Independence Pictures began paying salaries. Fortunately that dear Mr. Horner, far away in Algeria, was working on "The Wild Dove!"

Henry wrote that he had got himself taken on as an extra among the local white and Arab, quartered in the tent city of the studio down the street. He was near Dulcie and after nightfall he rode into Biscaia—they had dinner in course, in Billy Westcott, who had lent him a horse—and slept in his sitting room, across the corridor, till dawn, "her balcony having turned in a chillier during the night hours than she had anyway apprehended in a tropical country."

This change of plan was the more acceptable in that the new maid had proved sentimental and sympathetic and once had not hesitated to throw a bucket of water over the balcony railing upon a figure swooping below, which emitted a violent oath in Lyman's voice.

I tell you this, dear Miss Marsh, in order to justify Dulcie and me in what may well have appeared immature and gaudy suspicions. Not that I think it probable that Lyman would proceed to what I hesitate to call extremes. But his character is both theatrical and petty, and whatever simmers in him any length of time is apt to turn out unpleasant.

In higher vein Henry informed them of a rival picture company shooting not quite up to the mark—an obscure, foreign, French affair, the presence of which Lyman seemed to feel in some way rather of a swindler's inclination to crowd up the desert." In loneliness, as a matter of fact, he never seemed not to be living up to its reputation. Aviators of the French may always flying over it and thought to be looking down in a manner according to the American proprietor, and an invisible network of the French government covered it, somehow, to its horizons.

A great many social courtesies are being extended to Dulcie and the principals of her company, at which it is only natural she should be awkward through not being able to reply in the French language. But I will not conceal from you my feeling of there being also a commanding advantage in the knowledge of any remarks being made in public by Mr. Mack.

Good Morning! I promise that, as you watch "The Sorrows of Satan," you'll be downright sorry for the poor devil!

Here you see him not as a gloating marplot, not as a roaring lion seeking whores to lop each other deeply. Those who seduce him with much reluctance as still, rejoicing at his failure and brooding darkly over his successes. A devil with positively no pride in his deviling!

For he must remain out of Heaven until none is left on earth who has not said him nay. As reward for each soul that resists him he shall spend one hour at the gates of Paradise. And it seems that the fondest thing Satan is OF is spending one hour at the gates of Paradise.

Because he must gets all tangled up in the affairs of two penniless young writers who love each other deeply. They are on the verge of marriage—have the license bought and everything—when something happens that causes the man to cry out:

"O, what's the use of ideals! Money's all that counts! I'd sell my soul to the devil if I could get enough for it! I could run this world better than God!"

There's a knock on the door and Tempst responds to confront a swarthy, silk-hatted, stranger with gleaming eyes and a black mustache.

Who comes bringing him a fortune from a deceased uncle he had never heard of before.

It's a long time before the lovers meet again.

"The Sorrows of Satan"—adapted from the novel by Maple Correll—is an artful blending of legend scripture and modern fiction: of poverty and pageantry. The dairy lunch, brushes skirts with the gay cafe. There's the inept piffling and the aristocritics of the scart-lady. Jad-bal-ja...Himself

One food for meditation. Why sin if it just makes Satan sore? Be regular—treat the poor devil to an hour at the gates of Paradise!

Judas is with us. Question. Who or what is Jud-bal-ja? Guess: A Hebrew holiday?

Answer: No. Jud-bal-ja is a lion with much histrionic ability. He explained that he is the descendant of a long line of ancestors that distinguished themselves in the show business. There is no proof to this effect.

Jad is at present doing himself proud as co-star with the hero of Mr. Burton's stories, Tarzan—reared in the African jungles but who really is Lord Greystoke, an English nobleman, displaced by foul means when he was born.

He must gets all tangled up in the affairs of two penniless young writers who love each other deeply. They are on the verge of marriage—have the license bought and everything—when something happens that causes the man to cry out:

"O, what's the use of ideals! Money's all that counts! I'd sell my soul to the devil if I could get enough for it! I could run this world better than God!"

Cleanses skin of make-up, etc.,
this way, if "That schoolgirl complexion" is your aim

By NORMA SHEARER

LETTING make-up, powder and oily rouge stay on the face over night is a grave beauty mistake.
That tends to clog the pores; invites blackheads and imperfections.

Hence experts urge nightly cleaning with a TRUE COMPLEXION
SOAP and water.

Thus, largely on expert advice,
millions use Palmolive Soap; touch their faces with no other. It is made of cosmetic oils. It is made for one purpose only—to protect and beautify the skin.

Wash the face gently with Palmolive. Massage its balsmy olive and palm oil lather into the skin.

Rinse with warm water; then cold.

That is all—it's nature's rule for keeping that schoolgirl complexion.Do that regularly, and beautifully at night. Note how much better your skin is even one week.

GET REAL PALMOLIVE

Costs but 10¢ a cake. Use no other soap for your face. But be sure you use GENUINE Palmolive. Crude imitations, represented to be of olive and palm oils, are not the same as Palmolive. Remember that

The Stork Is Name of Lying-in Hospital's Benefit Lunchroom

BY NANCY R.

All the interior decorating secrets that are at present guarded so carefully and jealousy behind white-washed windows and locked doors down at 209 State, Wabash, are known to be the date set for the opening of the little lunchroom, "The Stork," (named yesterday) that is to swell the funds for the Chicago Lying-In hospital.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and Mrs. Anna M. Harris are commanders in chief of the enterprise, just as they were for that popular wartime lunch place, the Food for France shop, and now as then they're marshaled an army of faithful and energetic girls to put the new lunchroom on the map and keep it there until its purpose is accomplished.

Its name was selected by Richard Henry Little, of Ashton Stevens (who took James Weber Linn's place as the other judge). They had a long list of amusing names but finally picked the suggestion of C. C. Collins.

Mrs. Walter Paepcke and Mrs. Philip Maher are doing the decorations, but if you show curiosity about the general scheme, they'll inform you politely but firmly that you must wait until next Wednesday.

However, I can tell you this: The ceiling is charming red, and the walls, which are now white, are to be painted by these talented young matrons themselves.

Mrs. William R. Odell has charge of the cleverest features of the new shop—it might be called the salle de maison department. Each year chairman [this group includes Mrs. Huntington Henry, Mrs. John H. Whetstone, Princess Michel Canonne, Miss Mary Dale Owen, Mrs. William G. Swartzchild and Mrs. Eugene Sax] has undertaken to get a recipe for a special dish from one or another of the skillful bakers.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. C. N. Goodwin, Mrs. Swartzchild and Mrs. Sax have promised to furnish directions for some tempting concoction.

Day's News in Society

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Strobel are moving on May 1 from 846 North Michigan avenue to an apartment at 33 Belmont place.

Mr. Arthur Meeker of 1100 Lake Shore drive is to leave on Friday for a month's visit with his daughter, Mrs. Ambrose C. Kramer, at Montecito, Santa Barbara, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson of 1515 Astor drive and their children are planning to sail in June for the summer abroad. They are to visit at "Dartmouth House," the new residence of the English Speaking union out of London.

Miss Corinna Otis Skinner, who has been the guest of Miss Emily Kimbrough of the Virginia hotel for the last week, is departing today for St. Louis. Miss Skinner gave a program of character sketches at the Skokie school in Winnetka last evening for the benefit of the Bryn Mawr school choir fund.

Miss Jean Dawes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes of Evanston, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rumpf also of Evanston, at French Lick Springs, Ind., this week.

Necessary Evil.

I had attended a bridge party. A woman, who I don't believe had played the game more than once or twice, was there. As we were leaving, this woman said to the hostess, "Mrs. G, I don't believe you will ever want a dummy like me to join another of your bridge parties."

Without thinking, I immediately said, "Why, there has to be a dummy in bridge."

An Unexpected Guest.

The most embarrassing moment of my life was just a short time after we were married. We lived in an apartment and my husband was confined at home with flu.

I had been below stairs doing the laundry, which I had carried down in a suitcase, and when I returned, thinking my husband alone, I banged on the door with my hands and the suitcase as hard as I could, then opened the door and walked in to find friend "boss" sitting there.

He had come to see that my husband could return to work.

Romance, Drama,
Symbolism Cluster
Around the Pearl
BY DORIS BLAKE.

Do you know why pearls have universal appeal to womankind? No other gem, it is said, has so successfully cabbaged the flickleness of woman's fancy as the pearl.

If Eve's passion were appeased only with genuine pearls, the beauty of the subtle, cool mysterious gem itself might serve in explanation. But since she has more often to be, and is consistent with an imitation there must be some deep grained sentiment, symbolism, or superstition attached to the gem that holds her captive.

Consciously or unconsciously imagination plays a tremendous part in this cult of the pearl. Lore, myth, and legend endow this gem heavily.

To no other has been dedicated so many beautiful lines of poetry and around no other jewel have so many fanciful tales and dramatic action plots been woven. Poets and story tellers saw pearls in tears of tears of anguish, as well as in the tears of the Naiads or Sirens transformed into jewels. In spite of the superstition that pearls foretell tears, women still cling tenderly to them.

The symbol that endears the pearl to woman is not one of tears, but the relation it bears to love and marriage. The pearl was dedicated to Venus, the Goddess of Love, and from its beginning down through the generations it has ever been associated with marriage.

Hindu legend attributes the discovery of the first pearl to Krishna, who took it from the ocean depth to adorn his daughter on her marriage day. To this day Indian women still follow the example and the pearl, to them, is a sacred jewel. In many European countries the pearl necklace is the marriage portion of the middle class. And even peasants will save out of their meager wages the sum necessary to possess the coveted necklace.

It is not uncommon in America and in other countries to give the daughter a pearl on each birthday. By the time she is a debutante she has a strand of value. The practice of remembering a wedding anniversary with a gift additional to the one in constant growing favor with number.

So symbolically allied to love and marriage, woman's mission in life, were pearls considered in Caesar's time, that when threat of depopulation confronted Rome, Caesar forbade women who had neither children nor husbands to wear pearl ornaments.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Lost Interest.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man twenty-one and have been going with a girl nineteen. One night, after a dance, she said she would no longer go with me, but I called her up during the week and she said she was sorry and was glad I called her. Then, about two weeks later, she did the same thing, but would not make up and gave me no reasons. Should I try to get her to give her reason or forget her."

You would subject yourself to further refusals were you to make any further attempts, I fear. When she will give no reason, it is undoubtedly a case of lost interest, for which there is no cure.

FARM AND GARDEN BY FRANK RIDGWAY

Not many gardeners and farmers think of a snake as a friendly warrior that fights many of the pests that destroy both field and garden crops. Farmers have been led to believe that snakes are their enemies and must be killed, but scientists have another story to tell.

The snake has no means of injuring crop growth, but it does feed on small pests, such as ground squirrels, rats, mice, rabbits, moles, insects, or other animals which do destroy crops, according to J. F. Gunther, a zoologist of the Iowa State College.

In "The Snakes of Iowa," Gunther's new publication, a lot of false stories about the snake are corrected. He says black snakes do not steal milk, whisky is not a cure for a poisonous snake bite, and the like.

Gunther finds "the horror of snakes manifested by most people is acquired from parents or older people. This idea should be overcome, as most reptiles are harmless and of practical value," he says.

The economic value of snakes should lead farmers and truck gardeners to protect them. Some of the ways they can be saved are often difficult to realize.

Snakes, with their jaws formed so as to allow them to swallow a good-sized rat, mole, rabbit, and other good-sized animals, will kill many crop pests in a year's time. Gunther finds that about half the species of snakes in Iowa usually lay from half a dozen to a dozen eggs.

"She's a Septic!"

Many women want to be, deserve to be, and can be far more popular than is their lot. Do you know why? So do mothers. They call such cases appendicitis.

To remedy obstructions body aches and bad trouble, you must recognize their cause. The semi-contracting condition of the bowels destroys the bowels every day, but all the time it is not recognized. The matter that remains poised in the body terminates the operation. It taints the breath. Nature is driving her need of a little calcium.

Coldwater, the wonder in ear's appearance, with the bowels clean and free, the complexion clearer, more elastic, and the tongue is no longer crooked, Tens when. The tongue is never need take another harsh cathartic.

These remedies are specific, and don't know it. They act directly upon the body. It may take a few days to bring about the results. You never need these if you take Fletcher's Castoria.

Fletcher's Castoria is your medicine for the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paragoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

These mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

Yes, the Yellow Peril Threatens Our Modes

By Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—One of my friends who is nearly as tall as am I, myself, in the punning depths came away from one of our recent spring showings with an unmistakable glow on her face. Any fellow addit would have recognized that this unwholly light came from her to cause. She had been up to her favorite corner! True enough, her first words confirmed that suspicion of a fresh outrage.

"You ought to see all the yellow going on in there," she announced.

And then she added shamelessly, "It's not the better 'ole"—it's the butter 'ole."

Yet, after all, there is some provocation for her display of pearls. Few yellow is a dominant color of the season, and the whole frock stands out on whether restricted to trimmings and accessories, stands faithfully by its complementary tint of blue.

Above we show one of these new yellow creations. Here the tint chosen is orange, and it is developed in a printed fabric with a note of cel blue. This latter color is repeated in a velvet girdle and also in a matching belt. From V neck line. The sleeves show few modications of the prevailing modes and their tight cuffs are finished with small blue buttons.

But, though the yellow frock is represented, it is the accessories that receive the most emphatic approval of this new passion for anything from lemon to orange. Thus we find hats, shoes, bags and parasols — say nothing of numerous separate jackets selecting some shade of yellow.

There is something about orange peel at this time that just begs to be utilized rather than to throw much away. Jellied, or one sort of candied, peel can be used as a garnish in almost any place where jelly would be suitable — on merlins, on puddings, with baked apples, for seasoning or garnishing a tea sandwich. Or on a bonbon dish it is a fine garnish and ornament to the tea refreshments, and as an appetizer when light refreshments are served.

The basic recipe for preparing a soft orange confection of the peel is, for one orange — multiply quantities to suit — the peel of about 75 cent navel orange, one-half cup of sugar, one-half cup of water. In using much larger amounts less sugar and water, proportionately, may be used or less syrup made of these two. Take off the thick skin of a California navel, in quarters by means of two cutters, then the blanched end at right angles and carrying these cuts out around to the stem end. Before peeling off the skin, cut around the stem scar and remove it. The skin is too thick at this point to use. Now peel off this skin to a point. Use a sharp knife.

It is not necessary to soak this peel. Put it into cold water, bring to a boil, and cook until the pulp can be easily removed with a gentle cooking. Drain and scrape off the white part with a teaspoon, being careful not to break the quarters. Cut the rest into nice strings — ragged strings are messy — and drop into sirup, cover and simmer for fifteen minutes, skin out, drain and roll in sugar and dry slightly. The sugar and water will cook to a sirup stage in three minutes.

A slightly acid peel, and delicious, can be secured by cutting up one Jonathan apple, cooking it in water to cover, using the juice thus secured in place of the water in making the sirup for the finishing of the peel. A lovely pink peel can also be secured thus.

Orange juice or grapefruit juice, or grape juice may be used instead of the apple juice. Or some sort of juice may be melted up and used,
